Pennies by the gallon

Students at the Shawsheen School in Wilmington have been busy collecting pennies to pay for fill to be used at the new Kidsplace playground, to be built in June. Fourth graders in Mrs. Latham's class have filled a gallon jug with coins, and are well on the way to a second gallon. The school has raised over $2000 so far, just collecting pennies.

$11.9m school budget approved

by Arlene Surprenant

An $11,947,718 school budget for fiscal 1989 was approved Monday night in a three-to-two vote of the Wilmington School Committee. Shirley Callan and James Demos cast the two dissenting votes.

According to Chairman Tony Accardi, the final budget was pared down from a starting point of 13 percent overall increase to an 8.5 percent increase over the current budget. The town manager had recommended a five percent increase in the school budget in January.

Highlights of the budget include:

• $800,000 increase in contractual salaries, bringing the total in teacher and other salaries to $9.8 million.

• $276,000 increase in the transportation account.

• Elimination of 16 1/2 positions (teachers, aids, and specialists) and a decision not to add two assistant principals at the intermediate schools.

• Level funding of the supplies, textbook, and materials account, except for an increase in the intermediate schools for sixth grade texts.

• $18,000 set aside for increases in the school electric bill.

• $210,000 capital outlay warrant article for the one-time purchase of equipment. Of that, approximately $60,000 will go toward science equipment at Wilmington High.

Accardi said with a $1.1 million increase in fixed costs alone, the committee was hard pressed to know "where to turn next." He said the decision to cut staff was made with regret and was largely due to declining school enrollment. After reviewing a study on the use of school personnel in the system, explained Accardi, it was decided it was possible to eliminate some positions without affecting the quality of education.

"It's a difficult thing to do," he said, "but someone has to face up to the reality of it."

Committeemen held nine budget meetings in the past months during which they met with department heads, principals, and directors in formulating a budget which has been referred to as "tight."

Accardi said finance committee member Walter Kaminski, who sat in on every meeting, was "a great help" in the process, as was his fellow committeeman Jack Dennis.

"I don't know what else we could have squeezed out. We feel confident with what we have. The key thing is we have credibility with the town," summed up Accardi.

The next step will be an appearance this Thursday before members of the Wilmington Finance Committee to hear their recommendation and a meeting with the Wilmington Board of Selectmen March 28. Residents will have a chance to vote on the final budget at the April 23 town meeting.

Redistricting splits town among three districts

The redistricting of the Massachusetts House of Representatives will split Wilmington among three legislative districts.

Under the plan, approved in the House on Monday, four of Wilmington's six precincts will be grouped with Tewksbury in the 20th Middlesex District. This district presently is made up of Tewksbury and five Wilmington precincts, and is represented by Rep. Jim Miceli.

Precinct 3, which has been part of the 21st Middlesex District, represented by Geoff Beckwith, will be shifted to the 23rd Middlesex. It will be grouped with Burlington and Bedford in a district now represented by Rep. Augusto Grace.

Rep. Geoff Beckwith's 21st Middlesex District will give up Precinct 3 but will then pick up Precinct 6.

The redistricting was carried out under a federal court order which required the state to redraw district lines giving each district nearly the same population. The ideal number for a district is 35,917.

"I'm very, very disappointed that we weren't represented better," Selectman Jim Stewart told the Town Crier. In referring to Miceli, who served on the special redistricting committee, he said he didn't understand how Miceli could be a member of the committee and "allow the town to be sliced up into three pieces."

On Monday night, before the final vote was known, Wilmington selectmen zeroed in on some of the negative aspects of the new plan.

"Wilmington is being penalized by Tewksbury's growth," said an angry Stewart. He explained that even though Tewksbury's population has increased, it won't lose any districts while Wilmington may wind up with three representatives. "And that stinks," he said.

Dan Ballou felt that the redistricting will further split the town and said "that's the kind of representation we don't need."

Chairman Bob Cain said the whole issue could best be illustrated through the town's move to break with Reading Light. Both Wilmington and Reading are represented by Beckwith, who is reportedly placed in the difficult position of giving fair representation to both sides.

Stewart suggested a letter be sent stating Wilmington's views and opposing the redistricting plan.

Sludge grudge

Selectman Dan Ballou has begun a petition drive to inform the state that Wilmington residents oppose a sludge facility in their town. He suggested at Monday's selectmen meeting that the town demand another hearing in Wilmington on the additional property that is now under consideration for the operation.

Fellow selectmen Jim Stewart and Bob Doucette sought to hire professional consultants, as has been done in other towns, to help in the fight and provide expert guidance to town officials.

Reading Light proposes citizens' advisory committee

by Arlene Surprenant

A Citizens Advisory Committee was one of three key components in a proposal put forth by the Reading Municipal Light Board at a joint meeting with Wilmington selectmen Monday night.

The proposal, which was geared toward addressing three major concerns brought up by the town, was outlined by RMLD General Manager Leonard Rucker. It was the first time either side came in with a concrete plan.

Since the town had previously asked for representation on the light board, Rucker said the advisory committee would provide an opportunity for greater input from ratepayers. He said it was patterned after successful committees set up in other states in similar circumstances.

The committee would consist of a steering committee made up of a member from each town in the light district and the general manager and an Ad-Hoc Citizens Committee. The Ad-Hoc group would act independently and make recommendations directly to the light board. The steering committee would appoint members to the Ad-Hoc Committee and lay out the scope of work to be covered.

Rucker assured the selectmen, as well as visiting officials from the other towns, that the light board would defer any decisions until members review written reports received from the advisory group.

The second issue tackled was in-lieu-of-tax payments. Rucker said the town of Reading shall be authorized to make payments in lieu of personal property taxes to the four member towns. Such payments would not exceed, on an annual basis, two and one half percent of the net book value of the electric plant. Payments would be considered operating expenses and would be recovered through electric rates.

The third issue was street lighting rates. Effective July 1, 1988, RMLD would agree to equalize streetlighting rates among all members. Wilmington, North Reading, and Lynnfield would receive a 16 percent rate decrease while Reading would receive a rate increase. Adjustments would total approximately $119,000 among all member towns.

Part of RMLD's presentation was a slide show of graphs showing how Reading Light's rates favorably compared to those of other utility companies. RMLD officials also reiterated the advantages of remaining in the system and the disadvantages of leaving. One disadvantage pointed out by Rucker was the lack of tax exempt financing to establish a new system.

Selectmen raised questions on each of the issues for clarification. A sticking point seemed to be increasing rates to pay in-lieu-of-tax payments and taking the payments out of net earnings instead of profits. Selectmen also expressed the view that the town of Reading would still get a better return and ratepayers would be reimbursing Reading even more under the proposal.

When Selectman Bob Doucette asked if this was Reading Light's best offer, Rucker said the proposal was the result of "our best attempt" to find some answers to Wilmington's concerns. He said he favored sitting down collectively and addressing each issue.

"Negotiations have to be a two-way street. You asked us to bring back something; we've brought back something," Rucker added.

Selectmen will now take the information under advisement and review the proposal in the next few weeks before contacting RMLD.

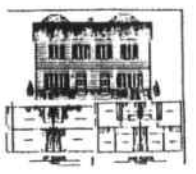

Time for tax revision?

Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski told selectmen Monday it may be time to revise Wilmington's tax rate structure. He made the suggestion during a brief discussion of the 90 percent sewer rate increase proposed for Wilmington by the Massachusetts Water Resource Authority.

Under the present structure the increase will affect the tax rate and, in effect, be paid by residents and industry alike. Stapczynski said the town may want to revise the structure "to hit the greatest users' and keep the burden off residents.

Wilmington Family Counseling: Helping people for 20 years

by Arlene Surprenant

The Wilmington Family Counseling Service Inc. has been helping people for the past 20 years. Since the agency's inception in 1967, the seven member professional team has helped residents with a "wide gamut" of problems ranging from agrophobia and drug-related situations to family crises and suicide attempts.

According to Psychologist- Director Dr. Carol Golub, the agency has seen 1,112 client families and doctors on staff have held 24,363 sessions in the past 20 years.

"That's quite an accomplishment," explains Dr. Golub, as the service prepares to celebrate its 20th anniversary.

As a non-profit agency, Wilmington Family Counseling is committed to providing quality mental health services at the lowest possible cost. That cost ranges from five dollars to $45 a session, and is set according to the client's ability to pay. In many cases, health insurance picks up all or part of the cost. The agency is subsidized through the Wilmington Board of Health.

Sessions last anywhere from 50 minutes to an hour, and are usually scheduled weekly to fit in with individual work or school schedules. Flexibility is the keyword with office hours until 10 p.m. four nights a week.

Over the years, says Dr. Golub, there have been changes in the public's approach to mental health. Though the problems have stayed the same, people have become "much more sophisticated" about the subject she says. In the early years, people came in looking for short term help and a way "to get over the hump." Many people couldn't even admit they had a problem.

Today, Dr. Golub explains, the "stigma" has diminshed and people feel "less threatened" by counseling. Thus, they are likely to remain in counseling longer and work harder to make changes in their lives. This more positive attitude on the part of clients, says Dr. Golub, means that her staff of licensed psychologists and clinical social workers are motivated to stay longer with the agency.

"You begin to feel like you can make a difference in people's lives," she explains. Dr. Golub continues: "For a lot of people in town, we're really like an extended family. We're here for them. We try to make things comfortable. In a lot of ways, we share a lot of people's lives in the community. And we get those people coming back in times of crises to get reinforced."

Dr. Golub says while Wilmington Family Counseling has grown over the years and successfully reached out to those in need, it has also survived its share of crises, most of them financial.

The late Emil Berger, Avco personnel officer, is credited with being the driving force behind the creation of the agency. He was instrumental in bringing together the Council of Churches and community leaders to make the project succeed. With an initial grant of $3,000 from the Wilmington Community Fund, the effort to provide local health care was underway. Then began a series of relocations until the agency settled in its current home in the Presidential Park office building on Main Street.

When the funds dried up, the town agreed to fund the agency in 1972. When Proposition 2 1/2 came along, the budget was cut 25 percent, a move which threatened the very existence of Wilmington Family Counseling. But, explains Dr. Golub, the community rallied around and was responsible for "one of the major turning points in our history." The one word that describes that period, says a reflective Dr. Golub, is "heartwarming."

Financially, the director explains, "we live close to the edge and cut corners all the ways we can." She adds the agency also does away with the medical model of having a big desk and stark atmosphere which forces clients to keep their distance.

In the agency's four room office, for instance, there is a relaxed honey atmosphere, deep cushioned sofas and armchairs, and no desk to keep therapist and client apart. That doesn't mean the relationship isn't professional. It is. But it's also viewed as a "partnership" with both sides working toward a solution to some common, and not so common, problems.

There is also a strict rule about confidentiality, which is followed to the letter. A board of directors helps establish policy and oversees the agency to insure competent, ethical treatment to anyone using the service.

Residents who feel overwhelmed by circumstances beyond their control are urged to contact Wilmington Family Counseling before the problem reaches crisis proportions. A simple phone call (658-9889) can put them in touch with a therapist who will work with them to ease the situation.

As Dr. Golub concludes, "we have a commitment and that is to provide the best quality service for the least amount of money." Without a doubt, that commitment will benefit many more families and individuals in the years ahead.

Anniversary celebration March 23

Wilmington Family Counseling Service Inc. is celebrating its 20th anniversary Wednesday, March 23 with a dessert reception at the Wilmington Sons of Italy Hall.

Television personality Dr. Tom Cottle will be the guest speaker. At 7 p.m., he will speak on the subject "Communication in the Family." Fourteen community leaders who had a hand in the formation of the agency will be honored during the evening.

The public is cordially invited to join in the festivities. Tickets are currently on sale at Cameo Video, Church Street Hardware, Village Apothecary, and Dr. John Marshall's office on Lowell Street. Purchase price is $3 in advance and $4 at the door.

Home for retarded planned

The care and education of retarded and handicapped children has "come full circle" in the past 20 years. So Barbara Remon and Lorraine Potter told the members of the Rotary Club of Tewksbury on March 3.

The two ladies are establishing a home for such people on East Street in Tewksbury. It will be one of 11 such homes in the area. The first clients will move in during the month of April. There are to be eight clients in each home.

Previously such persons were sent to an institution. Now they go to a home where they participate as members of society. Once a week there will be shopping trips. It will be a new life, one that they have not experienced in other places.

There is such a home in Georgetown, where people "grow" into a situation where they live as other human beings. The ladies told of a 62 year old women who, during her lifetime had never participated in home living. Now, every week, she helps in the household, and delights at such chores as handling a washing machine.

Twenty persons from the area will be employed in the East Street home. Barbara Remon is the person who is in charge of hiring.

Lorraine Potter will be in charge of the home, the house manager.

Eleven such homes are being planned in this part of Massachusetts. There will be two each in Georgetown and in Danvers, and one in North Reading, Lynn, Peabody, Lynnfield and Tewksbury, as well as in other communities.

Speakers Lorraine Potter and Barbara Remon, speaking at the Tewksbury Rotary Club March 3.

It's YOUR Money

by Joyce Brisbois
Certified Public Accountant

A "SURE" INVESTMENT

Looking for a sure thing, an "investment" that's guaranteed to pay you a return of about 18 percent, with no risk and no taxes? Sounds almost too good to be true — but there's no secret. All you have to do is pay off the balance on your credit cards!

Though interest rates on investments have dropped in recent years -- 20-year treasury bonds fell from 13 percent to 9 percent since 1982 -- credit card rates remain about 18 percent. You're paying more than you could earn on the money.

And the tax break you once got on personal interest is fast disappearing. No longer can you write off all the interest you pay against a 50 percent tax. Only 40 percent of the interest expense is deductible in 1988, 20 percent next year, 10 percent in 1990 -- and then it won't be deductible at all. The deductions won't be worth as much, either, against lower tax rates. The $1000 on interest you pay this year cost $868 from your pocket, after taxes at the top bracket.

"Super Planning Board" proposed for Tewksbury

by Bill Conlon

Tewksbury is faced with heavy development and construction, both now and in the foreseeable future.

To better handle and consolidate the town's oversight of development projects, a new town-level department is being discussed by the Tewksbury Planning Board.

At a planning board meeting on Feb. 29, vice chairman Joe Doherty outlined his proposed idea for a town "Department of Communities and Development."

The town currently has a number of different agencies handling new construction, Doherty said, with the planning board, conservation commission, building inspector, board of appeals, board of health, and board of selectmen involved. Engineering reviews are now done by an outside consultant, he noted, which adds to the confusion.

"In any program of this size," Doherty said, "you have to have an engineer working for the town." Drainage studies, for instance, are now contracted out to Howe Surveying of Billerica, until the town can find a replacement for the recently-dismissed firm of Cleverdon, Varney & Pike.

The benefits of having a department of communities and development would be three-fold, he said. A central office would be held accountable for overseeing developments, developers would be better able to keep track of their projects, and the public would have a ready source to answer questions.

With the existing relationship between the town's planning board and conservation commission, he said, a "catch-22" often occurs. A set of approved plans are needed before a project can go before the conservation commission, but the planning board often wants wetland issues decided before settling upon the layout of roads and parking lots.

Andover, he said, has an office of community development, and the town of Methuen has two full-time conservation inspectors, instead of Tewksbury's part time conservation commissioners, who must conduct on-site inspections in their spare time.

The new commission, as Doherty sees it, would be composed of six elected members, who would then hire a full time director of communities and development.

"It's going to be a Super Planning Board," he said.

At this week's planning board meeting, Doherty gave an update on his proposal. He said he is now looking at the way other towns have set up similar boards, and that he's learned much from the study. A full report will be made in a few more weeks, he said.

Also, he noted, approval of both the state Legislature and the voters of town meeting would be needed before the plan could go ahead.

Postal talk

Postal problems were the topic of conversation recently at a meeting of the Tewksbury Rotary Club. Tewksbury Postmaster Angelo D'Ambrosio and Ruel W. Longfellow of the Woburn distribution center visited the club to explain cuts in services. The talk ended up as a friendly discussion about other problems in servicing the mail.

Ruel, it turns out, is a relative of the famed poet Henry Wadsworth Longfellow. The exact relationship uses the word uncle, with five greats before it.

Bus motion fails

by Arlene Surprenant

A motion to approach the town manager for extra monies to add another bus to those servicing Wilmington students failed in a two to two vote of the Wilmington School Committee Wednesday night. The motion was the result of concerns raised by several angry parents whose children attend the Wildwood School.

At a previous meeting, the parents claimed it was unfair that their children were the last ones bused home two years in a row. They also complained it was hard for young children to wait up to a half hour for the bus to arrive in the afternoon.

Part of the problem is double bus runs made to the three elementary schools. Because of the double runs, some of the students are forced to wait for the second run. Assistant Superintendent Henry Dembowski said, to be fair, he changed schedules mid-year so those students previously taking the first run are now taking the second and vice-versa. The parents felt this action penalized their children who came home later all last year.

Dembowski said he had taken steps to re-route one of the buses to ensure earlier arrival times and, since managing the schedules, he has "tried desperately" to be fair. He added though all issues may not have been addressed for the parents' "convenience," he felt all safety issues had been resolved.

Committeemen agreed that safety was their primary concern. They said one way to address the problem was to add more buses. They told parents, however it would cost $18,000 to add another bus. A motion by Bridget Zukas to appropriate the money failed to receive majority support. The parents were told they could still pursue the funds through the Wilmington Finance Committee.

Three-year police contract signed

by Arlene Surprenant

A three year contract between the town and Local 318 of the International Brotherhood of Police Officers was signed by Wilmington selectmen at their meeting Monday night.

Highlighting the contract is a five percent salary increase in FY 1989, a six percent increase in FY 1990, and a six and a half percent increase in FY 1991.

Language items include $500 in annual compensation to encourage EMT certification, an education incentive of $100 and $200 for the first two years for degrees in criminal justice and public safety, and an increase in detail rates.

It was noted this is the first time since the early 1970's that a three year agreement was negotiated. Previously, the contract ran for a year.

Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski said the three year contract reflects the confidence both sides have in a continued good relationship between union and management. The agreement will go far to provide some security to the town, he said, adding it would help him also, in budget preparations.

Both sides praised Dick Brown for his role as negotiator, saying he was straightforward and honest.

Rezoning withdrawn

The owner of a 3.85 acre parcel on Lowell Street rezoned last year to high density business said he will withdraw a proposed article to rezone another 22,000 square feet to the same use.

John Forrest told Wilmington Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski he would withdraw the article even though his only intention has been to relocate his gas station on the larger parcel.

At a previous meeting, Selectman Michael McCoy said he doubted Forrest's intentions. He said he had heard talk of a car dealership on the site. McCoy had received the support of fellow selectmen when he said he would ask voters to rezone the original parcel back to residential use.

At Monday's selectmen meeting, McCoy remained firm in his desire to overturn the zoning. Selectmen were willing to go along with the article, at least until they could learn more about the proposed use of the land.

Forrest told Stapczynski, too, he plans to begin construction when work begins on the I 93/129/Lowell St. intersection. Reportedly, that will get underway in the spring of 1989.

$30 million set aside for creative housing

State Secretary of Communities and Development Amy S. Anthony announced Monday that $30 million in housing development funds will soon be made available under a state program designed to promote the development of alternative forms of low income housing. The Housing Innovations Fund (HIF) will provide funds for non-profit organizations to develop new and innovative housing projects, particularly for low income families and individuals with special housing needs.

Anthony said the new program will help provide "critical resources to groups that are committed to developing affordable housing and housing that otherwise may never be built because it doesn't fit into a traditional funding program."

The Housing Innovations Fund was created by legislature to encourage the development of new types of housing, such as transitional housing for the homeless, single-room occupancy apartments, battered women's shelters, limited equity cooperatives, and congregate housing for veterans.

The $30 million fund was part of the Housing Act of 1987, which was signed by Governor Dukakis last July.

HIF funds will be used to provide permanent mortgage loans and loan guarantees for nonprofit sponsors of eligible developments. At least 50 percent of the units in a HIF-financed project must be reserved for low income citizens.

"There are many groups across the commonwealth with creative ideas for producing new housing but no financing source," Anthony said. "The new Housing Innovations Fund will prove to be an important resource for the nonprofit community and will help to encourage innovation and creativity among those who wish to expand housing opportunities for our citizens."

EOCD will accept applications for HIF funds through April 15, 1988. The second and third funding rounds will take place in June and September. Interested community groups or developers should contact EOCD's HIF staff at (617) 727-7130 for further information and application materials.

DEQE reviewing Corenco plans

The odors from Corenco, a Billerica firm which faces on Woburn Street in Tewksbury have been discussed from time to time in meetings of the Tewksbury Board of Health.

On February 10 this paper reported on improvements at that plant, as discussed by the Tewksbury Public Health Officer, William McMenimen. There had been, he said, no complaints for some weeks.

McMenimen, in a March 14 meeting reported that the Metropolitan Boston/Northeast Region of the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Quality Engineering has been very active in the past few weeks. The DEQE has been engaged in reviewing plans and specifications of a new afterburner and associated heat recovery system, at the rendering plant.

"Three of the persons in pollution control made a point of seeking me out, at a conference, last week." McMenimen told the Board of Health. The DEQE, he said, is very much interested in Air Quality Control, and are checking closely on the afterburner specifications.

There are, McMenimen said, deficiencies in the proposed operation. The DEQE will continue to review the information. A complete review will not be conducted until after the deficiencies have been addressed.

Site review delayed

by Arlene Surprenant

Plans to pin down one of four town owned sites for affordable housing were placed on hold Thursday night until several legal questions can be cleared up. The four sites were reviewed two weeks ago by Wilmington's Affordable Housing Task Force.

At last week's meeting, members said questions concerning town liability should hazardous materials be uncovered on one of the sites, and the taking of two of the parcels by eminent domain need to be cleared up before they could pursue the sites. There are other questions, as well.

Members did agree to support the housing authority's application for EOCD funds for 12 new homes under Chapter 705. They offered their support as long as two homes on Ohio Street are included The two homes were offered to the town at below market value by developers Peter DeGennaro, Joe Langone, and Dick Stuart.

Other discussion centered on various state programs, ways to take a "creative" approach to affordable housing, and use of a local non-profit corporation to get some housing underway. It was learned members of the Wilmington Community Development Corporation have already been in touch with the state and looked into state funding, a move which received the enthusiastic endorsement of the town's housing consultants.

Frankly speaking

by Kevin John Sowyrda

Dennis Morse says he hated to leave Wilmington. But when he and Barbara Gerhartz decided to get married, buying their own home at today's prices was an 'American Dream' far out of reach. With apartments harder to find in this town than a needle in a haystack, there was only one alternative - move out of town.

It's too bad, because after talking with Dennis for just a few minutes, you could easily tell how much he missed home. Though he and Barbara have been in their Woburn apartment with their two healthy kids for a while now, Wilmington is still home, and will probably remain as such.

"I have friends who are originally from Wilmington that have had to move to Lowell, and want to come back as much as I do", says Dennis, adding that he wants his son and daughter to grow up in Wilmington as he did, attending the public schools, which he considers to be quite good.

Employed in Wilmington at a local business, Dennis Morse is putting his chips on the proposed development by First Homes Trust, to build 75 duplexes near Old Main Street. The 150 units would be privately owned, starting at $65,000 with a 5 percent down payment .

Meanwhile, Dennis and Barbara Morse continue to hope. "We've been waiting for years and years to have our own place, especially in Wilmington".

Michael Russo's had some hopes of his own. "I've been in constant touch with Dan Gillis and the Housing Authority, because the only way younger people can afford housing is through plans like this [First Homes Trust]. Younger people just can't afford $1,400 a month mortgages, just as the elderly can't", says Russo, who grew up with his parents on Chestnut Street in Wilmington.

Michael was the captain of his wrestling team, and played some ball before graduating from Wilmington High in 1981. When his folks decided to sell the old homestead, there was no place for Michael to go except outside of town. Today, he's one of many trying to get back into town.

"In reminiscing about Wilmington, it's funny how everyone knew everyone, through sports and social events. You could go anywhere and know somebody, especially through playing sports."

Today, Russo, like Dennis and Barbara Morse, has high hopes for the affordable housing project slated for Old Main Street. And because of its location, which is believed by many to be the biggest selling point for First Homes Trust, Russo doesn't see any reason for opposition. "I could understand if it were in the middle of a neighborhood, but this is at the edge of town, not in anyone's backyard".

For Amy Whalen, who grew up on Brand Avenue, any development in Wilmington that would allow her to return to her home town would be a blessing. When she got married in 1986, she and her husband couldn't find anything affordable until they came upon a small house for rent in Tewksbury, close by to Silver Lake. Amy's situation is most ironic of all. "I still do all my shopping in Wilmington, and all my friends are there, but I can't afford to live there".

Describing the cost of housing as "outrageous", Whalen says she makes a good living, "but if you don't have that down payment, you can't afford a house".

And perhaps one of Michael Russo's comments is reason enough to support the Old Main Street project. "This is an opportunity for people to have their kids stay in town, rather than moving to some place like New Hampshire".

Meanwhile, these folks are all on the outside, anxiously looking in.

Do YOU like affordable housing?

by Bill Conlon

The affordable housing program has been in and around the town for more than a year now, but one fundamental question has yet to be asked -- how do the voters feel about it?

The state's affordable housing program, or Chapter 774 of the Acts of 1969, burst on the scene in 1986, when the town learned that Andover was planning to put a condo development at the end of Tewksbury's South Street. The property is Andover's but is landlocked by Interstate-93, and the only available access is along South Street, raising all sorts of traffic and safety concerns. The Andover plan is quiet at the moment, but the broader issue remains.

Projects on Benson Road (23 units), Pleasant Street (21 units) and North Street (168 units) were approved by the Tewksbury Board of Appeals, while others at Chandler Street (47 units) and River Road (224 units) were voted down. A sixth proposal, on Maryland Road, was withdrawn.

The Merrimack Meadows project off River Road is far from settled, which raises a few questions for the town. Chapter 774 allows the developer to pursue a state override of the town's denial, and that's exactly what builders Bob Ahern and Buzz Couillard have been doing. Final testimony before the state appeals board was given in Boston last Thursday, and the issue now awaits the state's decision.

The selectmen have vowed to fight the development as long as legally possible, perhaps to include a lawsuit against the state appeals board if the Merrimack Meadows project is granted by the state override. A good argument for fighting the Merrimack Meadows development is that the state is trying to usurp the town's right to decide its own affairs, and perhaps that is worth a fight.

But the town has so far incurred more than $30,000 in legal costs to fight the Merrimack Meadows proposal, of which $12,255 was paid at a special town meeting in February. More such legal bills will land on Town Manager David Cressman's desk very soon, raising the total even higher, and current plans call for putting the unpaid balance before the voters in May. It promises to be a lively debate, and YOU are involved because YOU are footing the bill.

At the February special, emotional comments on both sides of the affordable housing issue were made. One gentleman at the meeting went to the microphone to plead in favor of affordable housing, stating that his children could not afford to live in their own home town because the cost of land and housing is simply beyond their ability to pay. Perhaps he had something there...

Today's real estate prices are a nightmare. Young and first-time homebuyers are either terrified of today's prices, or else they must settle for a starvation budget just to raise the down payment, which is then followed by a 30-year mortgage of crippling proportions.

During the initial public hearing on the Merrimack Meadows condo plan, one resident got up and barked that he had to scrimp and save to buy his house, and that kids today should do the same. But if he's owned his house for more than 10 years, is he really suffering under his old mortgage? Really now, how many of you reading this could afford to meet today's mortgage payments of about $1,000 a month, and then only after laying down an initial down payment of well over $15,000 -- or ten percent of the total. Add to that the cost of utilities and taxes, and such near-necessities as a telephone and a car, and you can easily see where food itself becomes almost a luxury item. Two healthy salaries are needed just to survive in today's New England. Forget about leaving the wife home to raise the kids. No way. Those days are gone.

The developers can't be slighted (entirely) for trying to make a buck out of the real estate crunch. That's capitalism at work. The state program is simply trying to entice developers to turn out units that are affordable for today's young homebuyer.

But there should be a town-wide or even a state-wide referendum to ask if you, the voting public, really wants affordable housing to go ahead or go to hell. A few town officials have grumbled that the issue belongs on a referendum, and indeed it does. On the one hand we see the town spending quite a bit of money to fight an affordable housing project, and on the other we see voters speaking out in favor of the program. Something seems out of balance here.

But the bottom line is that you, the voter, must decide the town's course of action. This issue is sore in need of public input.

Until this topic appears as a referendum question, state or local, we'll gladly accept letters to the editor. Let's hear your opinion.

Equal representation?

If you live in Wilmington and have ideas of running for state representative, you might as well forget it. The redistricting plan voted in the Massachusetts House of Representatives on Monday split the town so that nobody from Wilmington, other than the incumbent Jim Miceli, could possibly be elected.

Without going too strongly after Miceli, lets look at the effects of the redistricting plan.

First of all, there are six precincts in Wilmington. Of these, four will be grouped with Tewksbury to form the 20th Middlesex District, which Miceli represents.

Miceli, much to his credit, has worked very hard, especially in Tewksbury. He has built an effective political organization, and pays attention to his constituents. With ten years experience, he would be a hard man to beat no matter how the redistricting fell.

Anyone else from Wilmington, though, is out of the running. Wilmington, which has a smaller population than Tewksbury, only has two thirds of its voters in the district.

In the other two precincts, it's even worse.

Let's say you live in Precinct 3. You and 1790 other voters have just been redistricted from the 21st Middlesex District into the 23rd. What this means is that your state rep, instead of being from Reading, will now be from Burlington. And if you're in Precinct 6, your state rep will be a Reading resident.

The whole reason for the redistricting was a federal court ruling that the districts had to have populations that are almost equal. In many respects, this is an important principle to uphold.

It is not, however, the only consideration.

What has been ignored in the redistricting are the towns like Wilmington that are carved among three districts. While it can be said that the town now has three representatives, it can also be argued that it may end up with none, in a situation where the district towns have opposing interests.

How will a representative from Reading vote on an issue such as Wilmington against the Reading Municipal Light Dept.?

Will a representative from Reading care that there is a sludge plant proposed for Andover Street, in Wilmington's Precinct 6?

If towns must be carved up to make the districts equally sized, then why not require that each town in such a district have about the same number of voters in that district as the other towns?

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

I am a resident of Shawsheen Avenue. The residents of my area of Shawsheen Avenue have just had our cable tv service updated to the new Continental Cablevision. After a week of viewing it, I am about to pass judgement. I am most displeased.

First, the company states that the picture will be better than the old system. Since my family got the system, the picture has been snowy, fuzzy, and downright awful. Personally, I think the picture from the old system was far superior.

Second, the old system let you record any channel while the viewer watched another. With this new service, the company charges you $6 a month for a converter so you can do that.

The new service has given us more channels, but they are channels that don't interest most people. Now, we get two more pay channels, three religious channels and three home shopping networks.

I'm not the only one who is mad about the new cable service. What's more, there is no other cable service in town. You either have their service, or you don't. Another monopoly!

Furthermore, five percent of our bill goes to pay for local organization, channel 6. They usually have a lousy picture and an awful sound. It isn't worth it. It has also been brought to my attention that Wilmington and Burlington are the only two towns that pay the five percent, but the validity of the last statement can not be confirmed at this time.

This company has made a big and common mistake, they have installed a system that is not perfect. If they do go ahead and put it in the rest of Wilmington, they should work out the problems before they install it.

Name withheld by request

Dear Larz,

Recently I have attended a public meeting sponsored by the MWRA on the subject of the proposed sludge treatment sites in the greater Boston area; one of which is in our community of Wilmington, specifically on Andover Street on which my family and I have lived for many years.

The meeting held at Bedford High School was attended by many residents of both communties (Bedford and Wilmington). However, I felt that individual meetings should have been held in each community so that more residents could have had an opportunity to express their opinions on the impact this proposal would have on their community.

I have no doubt that the MWRA is trying very hard to solve some of the problems and undoubtedly they will achieve their goal, but I hope that in the process they will not leave a trail of unhappy and frustrated citizens.

We sugggest that the MWRA explore other possibilities in the location of such facilities and preferably away from residential areas. We also suggest that the MWRA approach this matter with open mind and heart and listen to the will of the people. I believe that imposing certain conditions upon citizens without regard to their feelings or needs is certainly not in line with our democratic system.

Since the problem of sewage treatment involves a large portion of the population in Massachusetts, we suggest that such facilities be constructed on State property and away from residential areas.

I congratulate the officials of Wilmington on their presentation at the meeting in regard to their objections to the site location. Some of the items discussed were:

Heavy volume of traffic already in the area; the nearby drinking water supply wells; new proposed housing development.

As a resident of Andover Street I can attest to the fact that during spring and early summer there are many streams flowing down to Andover Street from the area of the proposed sludge site. In fact, some of our residents have springs on their land; water which could very well be harnessed some day. These streams flow into Foster Pond which is only a quarter of a mile away from the proposed site.

In respect to private property value, the residents in this area have already felt the impact of indutrial rezoning. With the proposed sludge plant; this would further decrease the value of private property.

I don't think this is fair to us, or anyone else for that matter, having such a cloud hanging over our heads. We must realize that a sludge treatment plant on this site would certainly prevent the construction of badly needed low-income homes in the community.

As one of many concerned citizens, I am asking the MWRA to take all these facts into consideration.

Shawsheen River Estates hearing set for April 12

by Arlene Surprenant

For the third time, developer Jay Tighe will bring his Shawsheen River Estates project before the Wilmington Board of Appeals for a comprehensive permit. Two prior hearings did not go forward because of a lack or pertinent information and site approval by the Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency (MHFA).

The new hearing will be held on Tuesday, April 12 at 7 p.m. in the Town Hall. This time, Tighe will present a plan for 222 single family homes instead of his original concept of a 384-unit condominium complex. Tighe was asked by MHFA to change his proposal to fall under new HOP guidelines.

Tighe has obtained site approval and the green light to pursue funding in a competitive round this spring. Reportedly, he has submitted an application for funds for the revised plan.

In recent correspondance, MHFA Executive Director Marvin Siflinger told Tighe though his new proposal is eligible for funding, there are two stipulations: Tighe has to justify the 222 homes before applying for the monies since the density still exceeds HOP guidelines and he has to review the new project with the town and "identify any issues that may arise consistent with the requisites of both the HOP program and the comprehensive permit process."

Tighe will begin the review process by appearing before Wilmington selectmen at their next meeting March 28 and possibly before the Affordable Housing Task Force on April 7.

Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski told selectmen Monday Tighe has requested their support for a CDAG grant to help pay for the proposed sewer extension to the Hopkins Street site. Selectmen, in turn, requested that Tighe come in prepared with detailed plans and answers to questions which may be raised on the 28th.

Stapczynski also said the town will receive a Massachusetts Assistance Program grant to pay for technical help in looking at density, access, environmental issues, traffic, and other concerns relative to Shawsheen River Estates.

Town Meeting

A special town meeting has been called for April 23 for one article to handle budget transfers. The special meeting will fall within the annual town meeting on the same day.

Wilmington selectmen opened and closed the warrant on Monday to prevent residents from bringing in petition articles which could unfairly affect articles already on the annual town meeting warrant.

Carbon-dioxide levels reduced in schools

by Arlene Surprenant

A health hazard concerning excess levels of carbon dioxide in Wilmington schools has been corrected, Supt. Robert Horan told members of the Wilmington School Committee last week.

At their meeting Wednesday night, members learned there had been a serious problem with air quality in five of the six schools in the system. The West Intermediate School was the only one with comfortable levels of carbon dioxide.

The problem was brought to administrators' attention by school nurse Norma Rushton. As a result, all schools were evaluated by the state Department of Public Health in January and February.

The recommended state level for carbon dioxide is 600 parts per million. In a spot check, classsrooms in some schools had levels as high as 1800 and 2000 PPM.

Health officials said they found several factors that contributed to the problem. In the North Intermediate, for instance, they discovered several air supply units weren't in operation because excessive heat was given off when the blowers are in operation. They also found several exhaust grills were partiallay blocked with furniture, reducing the amount of ventilation. At Wilmington High School, it was discovered two rooms have no exhaust outlets which is reportedly a violation of the building code.

Commtteeman Michael Thomas said he had received calls from parents disturbed because their children were coming home from school with headaches and upper respiratory problems, possibly caused by the lack of ventilation. He suggested the school undergo another evaluation next year to monitor the problem. Horan said principals and administrators will keep an eye on the situation.

The Backyard Gardener

by Hugh Wiberg

By way of introduction, this first column will give the reader an idea of what to expect in this space over the upcoming gardening season.

We (the Town Crier and I) will not be conducting an ongoing "course," with each weeks' material building on what has preceded it. Rather, purely at the will of the writer, matters relating to the time of the season, with the emphasis on specific vegetables and their special problems, will be discussed.

In next week's column, I will attempt to answer the question, "What separates the average backyard gardener from the exceptional gardener?" The week after, we'll take a look at fruit trees, and whether or not they are worth the effort required to harvest clean fruit.

In the two following weeks, we will address the subjects of garden location, soil preparation, and recommended varieties of vegetables. Then the fun begins, as, by mid April, the planting season begins in earnest.

This gardener's very favorite vegetable, even beyond fresh corn on the cob and asparagus, is peas. Because of this admitted bias, two weeks in April will be given over to growing peas. The difference in taste and texture between canned peas and fresh home grown peas is the same as the difference between winter and summer. If you have never grown peas, I will attempt to get you to try a small planting this year. Chances are, if you grow peas and have reasonable success, your future gardens will never be without them.

Also in April, we'll discuss the other hardy vegetables (those that can withstand late frosts) including onions, the root crops, and the cabbage family.

In May, thoughts turn to that most popular of all vegetables, the tomato. We'll consider frost free dates, techniques of planting and staking the tomato plants, and the best varieties to plant in our locale. We might even 'plug' a local grower, who produces the world's healthiest, bearingest tomato plants, year after year.

From June through September, we will "wing it," week to week. Certain to be included as we go along will be discussions of the problems which inevitably befall every backyard gardener, beginner or advanced. High up on that list is pest control, small animals and insects. Should our control methods be "organic," or can we use pesticides? Weed and drought problems can be controlled - we'll spend time in these areas also.

Hopefully, time and space will occasionally allow us to answer readers' questions. We hope you will find this new column to be useful and informative.

Meet the Haz-Mat Committee

This is the 10th in a series of articles presented by the League of Women Voters of Wilmington in an effort to familiarize the public with the work of our town officials and to encourage the informed participation of citizens in government. The League will host a public "Meet Your Town Officials" reception in May giving citizens an opportunity to informally meet and talk with officials.

The Haz-Mat (Hazardous Materials) Committee, formerly known as the Hazardous Waste Committee, was renamed in order to expand its activities to include any hazardous material regardless of its purpose. The Committee consists of five members appointed by the Town Manager to indefinate terms. These positions are non-paid and members may hold other elective or appointive positions. The primary function of the Committee is to plan for possible disasters and spills within the community. Meetings are held at Town Hall with issues being decided by vote or consensus of the Committee.

A larger committee consisting of the members of the Haz-Mat and many other people is the Local Emergency Planning Committee which is required under the new federal law, Superfund Authorization and Reactivation Act (SARA), Title III. This committee is very similar but much larger consisting of the Haz-Mat, Town Manager, State Senator and Representative, member of the press and a member of each company covered by the law. Like Haz-Mat, the function of this committee is to establish emergency procedures in anticipation of spills, fires and other disasters.

The Local Emergency Planning Committee currently meets twice monthly with various sub-committee meeting alternately. While these committees have no set meeting times, they will be meeting as needed to comply with some very stringent requirements of the new law. Meetings are open to the public and are posted in Town Hall at least 48 hours in advance as required by law. For further information call Gregory Erickson, health director and chairman of Haz-Mat, at 658-4298.

REAL ESTATE GUIDELINE

PETS IN THE "HOUSE FOR SALE"

A dog or cat may be a home-seller's best friend under ordinary conditions, but once your property is listed for sale, you must be extra careful that pet smells are eliminated. Most prospective buyers, even if they have pets of their own, and even if their pets smell just like your's do, will be put off by animal odors.

If you have a problem, you might hire a professional to clean your furniture and carpets, or, if necessary, remove them from the property. If you have a cat box inside the house, check it frequently and keep the litter fresh.

When Realtors bring prospective buyers through your home, it's a good idea to let dogs or cats outside (if they are outdoor animals) or confine them to one area of the house. Some people have allergies and others have irrational fears of some pets. It may be hard for a buyer to appreciate your home through puffy, watery eyes or in between sneezes! If a buyer or his agent is afraid of being eaten by Fido, the chances of your home getting sold to that buyer are lessened, even if the house is exactly what he wants.

For professional advice on all aspects of buying or selling a home, talk to the professionals at Kelley & Kompany. Come by our office at 11 Middlesex Avenue (Suite No. 10) in Wilmington or call us at 658-4171.

Wilmington school news

Wilmington Teachers' Association

Results of a teacher survey conducted last month by building representatives at the high school showed all responding teachers favored keeping the eight period day schedule next year. The Wilmington School Committee has voted to go with a seven period, six day cycle.

According to the survey, the only advantage teachers saw in the seven period day was an opportunity for better administration control and more instructional time for students.

The teachers who responded cited many disadvantages including cutting out electives, reducing staff, increasing student-teacher ratios, and working with students an additional 42 minutes a day without added compensation.

In a letter to the chairman of the Wilmington School Committee dated March 1, WTA President Rick Barry said teachers wished to bargain over any changes in working conditions which would come about due to the schedule change.

Shawsheen School

The PACT after school program at the Shawsheen School got off to a flying start last week with a total of 400 students signed up for a variety of classes and activities. Because of the interest shown both by the students and volunteer parents, there is a possibility of holding a second program in the spring.

The activities offered include Kids in the Kitchen, classes in crochet and arts and crafts, creative writing, and cheerleading.

One program which has been well attended is street hockey. This group is lead by parent volunteers Carol Marquis, Sue McNabb and Sharon Alosco. According to Carol, 50 students in grades one through five showed up last Wednesday afternoon. There are also eight helpers - four high schoolers from Shawsheen Tech and four sixth graders.

Each Wednesday from 3 to 4 p.m., four teams of boys will play against each other on the school tennis court. Carol says each week the basics of street hockey will be put into practice and those in the program will learn good sportsmanship. During the last week, the girls who signed up for Nancy Murphy's cheerleading class are expected to come out and lend moral support.

The after school program is under the supervision of coordinators Robert Coffill and Michelle Nortonen with some assistance by parent supervisors and Bob Arsenault.

West Intermediate

On Thursday, March 10, an honors assembly was held. Students who received high honors, honors, or honorable mention for the second marking term were presented their certificates by Mr. James Jordan, Jr., principal, assisted by Mrs. Annette Curley, guidance counselor. Certificates were also given to students who displayed a positive attitude and who contributed in the classroom by the individual teacher.

On Friday, March 11, students were treated to a performance of "Butterflies are Free," performed by Wilmington High School students.

Sixth grade students met March 10 with peer leadership groups from Wilmington High School who talked to the students about alcohol use and abuse. This was the first of four meetings that sixth graders will be attending. The other dates are March 15, March 23, and March 28. The peer leaders took an intensive nine week training program given by the Prevention and Training Center in Waltham. Permission slips were sent home March 2 for parental consent.

The annual North/West Sports Night will be held at Wilmington High School gym Thursday evening, March 24, at 6:30. There will be a raffle with varied prizes, and refreshments will be served. Parents are urged to attend this event which proves to be most enjoyable every year. Proceeds to benefit the eighth grade field trip.

Interims were sent home March 11. Parents are asked to sign and return them as soon as possible.

There will be a P.A.C. meeting at the West Intermediate Wednesday, March 16, 7 p.m. to 8:30. The agenda for the evening will be - discussion on Sports Night, short update on the eighth grade field trip (meeting will be held with eighth grade parents at a later date), school improvement funds, fund raiser, Mr. Anderson (overview of sixth grade year) and questions and answers.

Friday, March 18, there will be a dance at the West for seventh and eighth graders from 7 to 10 p.m. The theme for the dance will be "Enchantment Under the Sea."

Wildwood School

The PAC-sponsored Book Fair was a great success! The PAC was able to donate $300 worth of books to the Wildwood School Library from the proceeds of the Book Fair.

Special thanks are extended to the following parents who worked at the Book Fair and bake sale this past week:

Judy Austin, Barbara Bishop, Patti Burke, Cynthia Jones, Maureen McDonald, Donna Smith and Sharon Winn. Thank you to all parents who donated baked goods.

The children in grade five have recently completed a language/healthh project titled the "Senses." Each student researched one of the sensess and produced a script for a mock television presentation. Children built creative television to scroll their scripts through. A videotaping activity is being planned.

Congratulations to Jane Carroll from grade five. Jane will represent the Wildwood School in the Lowell Sun's spelling bee contest in April. Chris Carter deserves best wishes as well. He has earned the role of alternate Health Fair update. Children in grades K through five have all contributed to the creation of a 100 foot mural depicting health themes. Other activities that the children have participated in include creation of a healthy foods cookbook, Know Your Pulse activities, creation of body models, use of health computer software, jump rope club activities, and the learning of health related songs. The children are eagerly looking forward to their participation in the fair.

Mrs. Norma Rushton, R.N., is asking for donations of baked goods to be sold to benefit a medical scholarship which will be presented to a senior at Wilmington High School. The sale will be held during the health fair. All baked goods should be taken to the school office Thursday, March 17 by 3 p.m.

The next meeting of the Wildwood PAC will be held March 22 at 9:30 a.m. in the all-purpose room.

School Health Fair

A reminder to all Wilmington residents to attend the Health Fair presented by Wilmington Public Schools and the American Heart Association. The Fair will be held this Thursday and Friday, beginning at 7 p.m. on Thursday and 9 a.m. on Friday in the high school gym.

Wilmington students have worked very hard on various projects and posters to promote good health. Residents may also be screened for cholesterol, blood pressure, vision and hearing and learn more about their own body's health through various exhibitions and demonstrations.

This is an excellent opportunity to become informed and view the students' work. The project is under the overall supervision of Norma Rushton, school nurse. Admission is free.

Note: We encourage all chools to let us know about outstanding students, faculty members, upcoming events, PAC news, and school activities. Please drop off all copy to our new office located on Jefferson Road (behind the old building) or call Arlene Surprenant at 658-5696.

Wilmington senior topics

Fair meeting

There will be a meeting in the function room of the Buzzell Senior Center Wednesday, March 23 at 10 a.m. for all seniors who are interested in working on tables or articles for the fall fair. The fair committee will be formulating plans for the event; selecting a date during the fall months when the fair will be held; who will be working on the tables will also be set at this meeting.

To make this a very successful fair the committee this year is getting an early start. Remember this is the seniors' fair and if you wish to be a part of it, join the committee on the 23rd. After the meeting you may want to learn how to make the craft article Mary Valentino is teaching in her craft class from 9 a.m. to noon.

Meeting well attended

We thank the 108 seniors who attended the Council on Aging meeting last Monday in the center. It was a very informative and interesting meeting thanks to the wonderful guest speakers, Robert O'Byck from Blue Cross, Attorney John Calnan and Silver Hair Legislator Bill Strob. We learned from Attorney Calnan what the Homestead Act is all about and how important it is to protect our homes through the Homestead Act. Bill Strob spoke on the number of surrounding cities and towns residents who have asked him about the act. He was surprised that they were unaware of it, that their Silver Hair Legislators did not inform that the Act had been passed into law in 1987. Robert O'Byck spoke on Medicare, Med-gap policies and HMOs.

He answered many questions from the large group of seniors in the hall, to the satisfaction of all. For those seniors who were not able to attend, I feel a few of the questions he answered may be on the minds of many other seniors and should know about how these claims are handled through your Medex coverage.

His response on how much insurance is enough? Answer, if you have Medicare and a good supplement policy that is sufficient in Massachusetts. The reason for this is that Massachusetts is one of the states where doctors are required to accept assignment. What is assignment? That is the price Medicare will pay for a medical bill. Therefore if you receive a bill after Medicare has paid the 80 percent and Medex or another supplement policy has paid the 20 percent the doctor has overcharged or is not accepting assignment.

You are not obliged to pay it. Call BC/BC Medex Dept. He warned us if we travel out of the state and are treated by a doctor in that state you will have to pay, as that state may not require the doctors to accept assignment. I was also told if you leave the country on a vacation Medicare will not cover you. A Medex policy will cover you up to a certain amount providing you pay the bill and submit it for payment with the doctors or hospital names on the receipted bill andd mail it to Medex Box 620, Boston MA 02110.

Thanks

Thanks again to our guest for taking time out of their busy schedules to enlighten us on these important issues.

Need help?

If you would like Attorney Calnan to help you with filing your Homestead Act form and notarize it the same day, call the Center leaving your name and telephone. When we get a sufficient number Attorney Calnan will come to the center to do them all at once. We will call you as to the time and date he will be here.

Nurse at the Health Fair

Nurse Abbie will not be at the Center this Thursday, she will be working at the high school health fair.

Hearing aid specialist

Our hearing aid specialist will be at the center this Friday to check the proficiency of your hearing aids and give hearing tests. This service is free to all seniors.

Call the center first

We have been informed that seniors are receiving calls to have a free hearing test in their homes. Please do not accept any person into your home without checking it out by calling us at the center. We are informed when a company is offering a free service to the elderly, and when they will be calling the seniors. Remember when a person comes to your door, have them show a legal identification card before you open the door to anyone. As for a free hearing test in your home, any senior who cannot come to the center our hearing aid specialist will come to you.

Whist party

The arts and crafts whist party will be held in the function room next Monday beginning at 1 p.m. Prizes are made available for the games through the generosity of the Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs.

How the Town Crier will cover the candidates

Tewksbury voters will go to the polls on April 9 to elect a host of town officials. The decisions facing the voters are important ones, and information about the candidates is needed.

For this reason, the Town Crier will be offering information on the candidates in the coming weeks.

In next week's issue, March 23, each candidate will be allowed to run a 500 word press release, with photo. School committee candidate press releases are scheduled for the following edition, on March 30.

Also, an eight-point questionnaire has been sent to all five candidates for the office of selectmen, with questions on affordable housing, traffic, the importance of the town manager and another about the future of the town. The responses to these questions will appear in the March 30 edition for all five candidates.

A similar questionnaire is being developed for school committee candidates, hopefully to appear in the April 6 edition of the Town Crier.

The Tewksbury Town Democratic Committee has scheduled a Candidate's Night for March 31 at 7 p.m. in the high school auditorium off Pleasant Street, for all candidates for elective office. However, such a story is difficult to cover accurately and in-depth, so all interested voters are urged to attend or watch the proceedings on town cable TV.

And of course, the final results of the voting will appear in the April 13 edition.

T.B. screening offered

Public health officer Bill McMenimen reported to the Board of Health that next Wednesday there is to be a screening program in the Tewksbury DPW building, for tuberculosis, for town employees. It will be conducted he said, by several registered nurses.

On the request of Steve Eriksen of the Norse Environmental Services of Tyngsboro a variance was granted in requirements for a grease trap, for a food service establishment to be established in the Claddaugh Place, on Main Street. Under ordinary circumstances a 5,000 gallon grease trap is required. The variance was for a 2,000 gallon grease trap.

The food service, to be in the end unit, will be, largely, a take-out service. Only disposable plates and utensils are to be used.The owner is to be a Mr. Beaulieu of Lawrence.

The Board of Health granted a variance after agreement had been reached on provisions as to notice to other persons in the condominiums as to the details granted.

Active Dancer Stephanie Coldwell, the liveliest dancer on the floor at the Tewksbury - Wilmington Elks, March 12.

Saturday night at the Elks

Every now and then something out of the ordinary happens - something which is worth recording. One such event occured Saturday evening at the Tewksbury - Wilmington Elks. The date was March 12.

There was an Irish band from Billerica. Every man was Irish born, and proud of it. The band not only was good, it was also good and loud.

Dance the Hully-Gully? Oh Yes! Dance the Irish Jog? Certainly! You name the dance and the band supplied the music.

It was a middle aged crowd, husband and wife sort of party, but there was one youngster there, a girl named Stephanie Coldwell.

Stephanie, let it be recorded, was on the floor for every dance. The livelier the music, the more active she was. She was a natural, and Tewksbury could be proud of the nine-year-old dancer.

The March 21, 1963 edition of the Town Crier of Wilmington noted that:

Gerald R. Bouchard, a resident of Saganaw, Michigan, where he was assistant city manager, was about to arrive to assume town manager duties in Wilmington. Temporary Wilmington Town Manager, Harold Melzar told the Board of Selectmen that he would make himself available to help Bouchard in any way he could.

With over 200 entries, the seventh annual High School Science Fair at WHS promised to be the largest ever. Science teachers under the leadership of Dr. Elene Farello were hoping it would also be the best fair ever from a quality standpoint.

Mrs. Clara Chipman, Wilmington librarian, was pictured accepting a donatian of books from Campfire Girls. Making the presentation were Elizabeth Kroll, Lorraine Kenney, Gayle Nichols and Judith Zides. Mrs. Nancy Clark, district committee member accompanied the girls.

John Fenlon, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Fenlon of Burnap Street, a freshman at Bentley College, was cited for academic achievement for maintaining an average of better than 3.0 during his first semester.

Over 200 youngsters signed up for Little League. Officials pictured taking part in the signup were Al Kasabuski, John Kalkanajian, Jim Tildsley and Bob Cowie. Being interviewed were prospective players Paul Fullerton and Doug Smith.

Leo Woodside, clerk at the Wilmington Center Pharmacy joined the US Army and was stationed at Fort Dix, N.J.

Matthew Hooper of West Street was shown just taking his sip of Sabin Type II vaccine in the Wildwood Street School when he noticed the camera. Other youngsters in the line were Mark Kalkanajian, Robert Knowlton, Herbert Mason and Charles Swain.

Bobby Allard of Glen Road was accepted as a student at the Industrial Technical School of Boston in the Industrial Electronic Division. A 1960 graduate of WHS, he was a student at the University of Mass.

In a letter to the editor, George Soule, Jr. of North Street admonished the Town Crier for refering to "petty arguments" taking place at the Town Meeting. Said Mr. Soule, "Mr. Editor, please do not call the words and thoughts of a taxpayer, 'petty arguments'"

The Wilmington Construction Inc. was formed on St. Patrick's Day for the purpose of specializing in concrete forms and the construction of concrete foundations. Pictured "shaking on the deal" were President John F. Comeau, Jimmy Fiorenza and William Rooney.

Meet the press A group of Tewksbury Camp Fire Girls visited the Town Crier office last week to learn about newspapers, photos, page layout and other aspects of the Fourth Estate. Assistant Tewksbury editor Bill Conlon (top) told the group what little he knows about the industry.

New Rotarian David Cressman, town manager of Tewksbury, became a member of the Rotary Club on March 3. Cressman was proposed for membership by John Bolduc (left). Club president Tom Bowley is seen at right.

Tewksbury Camp Fire visits newspaper office

by Bill Conlon

Four Tewksbury youngsters paid a visit to the Fourth Estate last week when Monica McBrine brought her Camp Fire troop to visit the offices of the Tewksbury Town Crier.

The youngsters, ages five to 11, toured the Wilmington main office of the weekly Town Crier newspaper, now located at 200 Jefferson Avenue.

Heather Hammond, 10; Megan McBrine, also 10; Heather Barry, 11; and "mascot" Eric McBrine, age 5, joined Camp Fire Leader McBrine for the Friday afternoon visit.

The youngsters learned how news is gathered and written (they're looking over my shoulder as this piece is being typeset, in fact), how pages are laid out and how photos are handled. This reporter found it unusual to be on the receiving end of questioning, instead of the giving end, but it was still fun.

Leader McBrine said her charges looked through back issues of the Town Crier, which all of them receive through home subscription, to have their questions ready in time for the visit.

Camp Fire members earned a bead for their efforts, equivalent to a merit badge in Scouting. The bead was the first of five needed for a Try-Ad award, or "trying out a new adventure."

Tewksbury artist exhibits at First Bank

This month, spring will arrive in Tewksbury and so too will summer, fall, and winter. All four New England seasons will be included in a watercolor painting exhibit to be held at the First Bank Building at 600 Clark Road in North Tewksbury from March 28 through April 9.

The exhibit features the work of Tewksbury artist Shirley Winslow who has studied art since she was 10 years old. In addition to the art exhibit, Winslow will be conducting a live demonstration of watercolor painting at the bank's other Tewksbury office at 1866 Main Street (Thursday, March 31, 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.)

Winslow's subjects include people and their relationships, and landscapes of New England. Of particular appeal is her play of light and shadow within a composition.

She is a member of the Chelmsford Art Society, the Concord Art Association, the Lexington Painters Guild, to name a few. Her paintings have been displayed at the Carriage House in Chelmsford, and Memorial Hall Library in Andover as well as the Chelmsford Art Society Show in 1987 where she received an Award of Excellence.

The First Bank building at 600 Clark Road is located at the intersection of routes 495 and 38 on the Tewksbury/Lowell line. The exhibit is open free of charge to the public during normal banking hours. For more information contact Mary Lonergan at 459-2000.

Wilmington School Committee candidates

Suzi Cushing is candidate

Suzanne Spiris Cushing, 7 Concord St., Wilmington, has announced her candidacy for the Wilmington School Committee. Suzi is a 31 year resident of Wilmington. She and her husband Jim Cushing have a daughter, Kelly, who is in the third grade at the Woburn Street School. Both Suzi and Jim went completely through the Wilmington Public Schools, Suzi graduating with the class of 1969, her husband Jim with the class of 1967. In addition, she graduated from Endicott College in 1971 and holds an associate in science degree.

Suzi has been an active member of the Woburn Street School Parents' Advisory Council for the past four years and this year is co-chairman of the PAC. Five years ago, along with her husband and a group of dedicated Wilmington High School alumnus, they brought back the Wilmington High School Alumni and Friends Association, she is now treasurer of this organization, an organization which provides support for the students and student activities at Wilmington High school. She is also a member of the Community Board of Directors at the Regional Health Center in Wilmington where she also serves on the personnel committee.

Last year, after receiving the majority vote of the board of selectmen and the school committee, she served on the school committee seat left vacated by the death of her father, Mitchell Spiris, until last year's town election. Having attended the majority of school committee meetings for the past four years has given her much insight into how the school committee functions.

One of Suzi's major goals and concerns is the need for more parental involvement in their children's education.

"So many times parents have come to me with concerns, small and large, about their children and they just need to know what direction to be pointed toward solving them. The lines of communication between parents, students and all staff need to be opened up even more."

Suzi feels very strongly that as a member of the school committee you need to always be accessible to listen to any and all concerns of the parents of our children. "You are voted onto the school committee by voters who have the faith in you that you will do the best job possible for their children, because of this, I feel that a school committee member has a great responsibility to represent these parents."

"Wilmington has a good school system, but we must not be complacent with good, we must all strive for excellence."

Robert Surran running for school committee

Robert E. Surran has announced that he is seeking election to the Wilmington School Committee.

Bob has been a resident of Wilmington for over 14 years and lives at 13 Crest Ave. with his wife, Louise, and their three children, Bobby, Brian and Amy, all of whom attend Wilmington public schools.

He has been employed with the New England Telephone Company for 16 years and during that time has held various managerial positions.

As a parent and taxpayer Bob Surran is extremely concerned with Wilmington's need for affordable, quality education. Bob feels that more emphasis should be placed on textbooks, pencils and a low student-teacher ratio. Bob would like to see more money spent on basic subjects like reading, writing and arithmetic. These are the subjects which are the backbone of any strong school system.

Bob has long been an advocate of the youth of our town. He has been involved with both the Wilmington Little League and the Wilmington Youth Soccer Association for many years. He is currently president of Wilmington Little League, a position he has had the honor of holding for the past four years. In addition, he has also served the Little League as an officer, board member, coach, player agent, publicity officer, and refreshment stand manager.

Bob's youth soccer activities include coaching, being a founding board member of the Wilmington Youth Soccer Association, travel team coordinator, field coordinator, scholarship committee member, as well as a board member and age director of the Middlesex Youth Soccer Association. He is also a Confraternity of Christian

Robert Surran

Doctrine Catachist at St. Thomas of Villanova.

These are not the qualifications of a political candidate, these are the activities and interests of a man who cares about children and wants to make their life better by improving education in Wilmington.

On April 16 the voters of Wilmington will have the opportunity to elect a candidate concerned with a better Wilmington, better education and a better future for our children.

Please vote Bob Surran, Wilmington School Committee, "because kids count."

Shirley Callan seeks re-election

Shirley F. Callan, a resident of Wilmington for the past 25 years, has announced her candidacy for re-election to the School Committee. Shirley and her husband, attorney and former town moderator John M. Callan, live at 571 Woburn St., and have been active in town activities in a variety of ways for many years.

Shirley returned to school after raising three sons and graduated Summa Cum Laude from Merrimack College in 1981. She was awarded the Cardinal Cushing Medal as first ranking student in the Division of Social Sciences, and designated a Presidential Scholar. She then went on to pursue her interest in school and community at Harvard University graduating with a Masters Degree in Counseling and Consulting Psychology. While at Harvard, she was elected to Phi Delta Kappan, a National Honor Society in Education. She is planning to receive her Doctor of Education degree from Harvard University in June in the area of Teaching, Curriculum, and Learning Environments. Shirley is currently a finalist in the 1988 National Spenser Fellowship competition awarded for research that gives promise of yielding new knowledge leading to the improvement of education.

For the past three years, Shirley has been employed as an admissions officer at Harvard University. Prior to her position in Admissions, Shirley was coordinator of Project Intercede at Wilmington High School, a highly successful intervention program for students at risk of dropping out of school. She also served as a member of the Wilmington Board of Library Trustees for 15 year, several times as chairman. She is currently vice chairman of the School Committee.

Shirley feels her past three years on the Wilmington School Committee have been productive ones and points with pride to the expansion of computer programs at the elementary and intermediate levels and the recent Elementary School Accreditation. In addition to the recent renovations to the High School, Shirley is proud of the successful creatio n of the sixth, seventh and eighth grade intermedaite schools. Over the past three years, the committee has seen the implementation of the Study Skills Program as well as an expansion of inservice programs for teachers.

A special source of pride to Shirley has been the senior citizen lunch program at the high school and senior participation in art classes at the high school. Shirley is committed to providing programs and services to all residents of the community and believes that we all have much to learn from one another.

One of Shirley's future goals on the school committee is to keep and attract superior teachers because she believes our educational system is founded with our classroom teachers. Every student needs reading, math and writing skills and this basic training takes place in a school system that cares and is willing to the time and effort to achieve it.

Shirley believes she has the experience and the unique blend of skills that enable her to look ahead with vision, while addressing the needs of all the residents of Wilmington. Her education, background and experience make her uniquely qualified to help carry out this commitment.

Nurses run May 1

Hundreds of nurses from all over the Greater Boston area will run for your life in the Sixth Annual Run for Nurses, on Sunday, May 1 at the Sheraton-Needham Hotel, sponsored by Nurse Mates.

Since 1983, nurses have been demonstrating their commitment to good health and exercise and their support of the American Heart Association through this event.

The nurses have raised more than 75,000 dollars over the years to assist the mission of the American Heart Association: to decrease early death and disability due to heart disease, the number one cause of death in America. This year's goal: 20,000 dollars.

As a special incentive, the Sheraton-Needham will host an elegant, heart healthy, post race brunch for the first 100 nurses to raise 50 dollars or more.

Official race t-shirts, donated by Coca-Cola, will be given to the first 300 nurses to register for the event. Fundraising prizes, including a weekend for two at the Sheraton-Needham, with brunch, plus a special gift from Nurse Mates, will also be awarded.

For more information, contact the American Heart Association, 449-5931. The Run for Nurses is open to nurses and student nurses only.

Another Lombard rebound

Wilmington High School senior Mike Lombard latches on to this rebound in MVC all-star action. Lombard's talents will be on display again this weekend at Bentley College.

Marathon dinner

The Boston Athletic Association recently annunced plans for the celebration of its' 100th anniversary. The B.A.A., organizers of the Boston Marathon, will hold a black tie dinner and dance March 25 at the Copley Plaza Hotel. Proceeds from the event will benefit the Greater Boston Special Olympics.

Keynote speaker will be nationally renowned sportscaster Curt Gowdy, a seven time recipient of the "Sportscaster of the Year" award. Mr. Gowdy was the first recipient from the field of sports to be honored with the coveted Peabody award for excellence in broadcasting.

The Boston Athletic Association has been the preeminent force behind the world's oldest continuously run marathon for 92 years. Founded in 1887 as an athletic club dedicated to the encouragement and promotion of "physical culture," the Boston Athletic Association organized its' first marathon on April 19, 1897 with 15 entrants. In April 1988 over 7,000 competitors from more than 30 countries are expected to participate in the Boston Marathon.

In his announcement of the 100th anniversary celebration, B.A.A. President Frank Swith said, "As we start the next 100 years, the B.A.A. looks forward to upholding the tradition of excellence that the Boston Marathon represents. The continued success of the Boston Marathon is due in large part to the dedication and commitment of the cities and towns along the race route, the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, the corporate sponsors, and the thousands of volunteers. With this generous support at all levels, the Boston Marathon remains the premier running event in the world today."

Tickets for the B.A.A. 100th anniversary celebration are $100 and can be obtained from the Boston Athletic Association at 20 Park Plaza, Suite 614, Boston, MA 02116, (617) 338-5709.

No. Reading's Justice of the Peace Betty Vullo

Over 2,000 times she's heard the words 'I do'

By JIM ROUILLARD

If she marries a couple above the penguin pool, the birds — at least — will be there in black tails.

North Reading's Betty Vullo, Town Clerk and licensed to marry, is a lively, attractive, articulate mother and grandmother — of three in each instance — who helps contradict the ancient Hollywood cliche of justices of the peace.

True, she has married couples in both the heat of the night and the light of the noonday sun — and even in the desolate morning hours — for a couple whose marriage license was due to run out the next day.

They'd called late one night to ask if Vullo could marry them. She agreed, and gave directions to her house, but they managed, in city cousin fashion, to get lost in North Reading's wilds.

Awake at 2 a.m., and still waiting, Betty was a little concerned.

An hour later, she received a call from a North Reading policeman who may have been a little skeptical about the young couple's tale of marriage plans and being lost on Route 28 at 3 a.m.

But Mrs. Vullo reassured him that she was, indeed, waiting for the pair — and the policeman ended by serving as one of the witnesses.

Vullo said she holds her commission as justice of the peace from the governor's office. By virtue of being a town clerk, she said, she may apply for the commission, which she has held for 19 years, though all town clerks do not choose to apply.

She adds that many people are happy to meet a female in a role typically seen as being in the male domain. "It also helps eliminate the old image of a justice of the peace as someone holding a candle above a book with his wife in the background playing 'Lohengrin' on a cracked piano," Vullo said.

The expiration of a marriage license isn't the only potential tangle involving a license to wed, she added:

"One young couple came several years ago, about 5 p.m., and asked if I would marry them.

"'Well, may I see your license,' I asked.

"When the young man produced his driver's license, I explained that wouldn't be enough. The young woman said:

"'I told you we didn't have the right license.'"

Vullo mentioned that some people actively search out a female justice of the peace, particularly since the emergence of the feminist movement.

One couple, in fact, provided a woman for their best man — and a man for maid of honor. The bride said she was opposed to the casting by sex of the two roles, Vullo said, so the couple reversed the traditional positions of their witnesses.

Witnesses to a civil wedding ceremony, by the way, are not required by Massachusetts state law.

State law is specific, however, as to whom you may not marry. From "Legal Impediments to Marriage," derived from the General Laws:

"No man shall marry his mother, grandmother, daughter, granddaughter, sister, stepmother, grandfather's wife, grandson's wife, wife's mother, wife's grandmother, wife's daughter, wife's granddaughter, brother's daughter, sister's daughter, father's sister or mother's sister."

Likewise, "No woman shall marry her father," or any of the other male equivalents of the relatives listed above.

Also: "An insane person, an idiot, or a feeble-minded person under commitment ... shall be incapable of contracting a marriage..."

One local (unmarried) resident, on reading the latter sentence, concluded the law must be out of date, given some of the marriages she said she has heard of or witnessed.

Among the questions Vullo said she is most often asked:

"Can you strike the word

Betty Vullo S-4

IT'S A QUESTION OF JOY for Betty Vullo, North Reading Town Clerk and Justice of the Peace, when she pronounces people husband and wife in a civil ceremony. Holder of JP commission for 19 years, Vullo has performed more than 2,000 weddings, with witnesses ranging from priests and rabbis to penguins in black tails.

More tidbits of American History

FM TALK

Our far-flung correspondent is on special assignment today. Until his return, another round of off-beat tidbits on American history:

Politics and sex scandals are not indigenous phenomena of our modern times. As far back as the eighteenth century rumors of sexual trysts involving high-ranking political figures abounded. In many instances the rumors turned out to be the truth, and reputations were damaged. Such was the case with Alexander Hamilton. In "The Papers of Alexander Hamilton," edited by Harold Syrett, it is revealed that Hamilton became involved with the wife of a notorious speculator. To save face, Hamilton had to publicly announce that it was actually the speculator's wife whom he was involved with. In an open letter, Hamilton indicated that he became aware that the speculator and his wife had intended to blackmail him, and that his trysts with the wife had been a case of terrible misjudgment.

One of the first cases of un-American activity occurred in July of 1798 when President John Adams was travelling through Newark, New Jersey, on his way home to Quincy, Massachusetts. As Adams passed through the town, an old artillery piece was fired in the president's honor. As the gun went off, a customer in a tavern commented half-heartedly that "they are firing at (the president's) bleep." Luther Baldwin, a crusty old Republican with a reputation for being a drunk, responded to the comment by saying that he didn't care if "they fired through his bleep." Well, he shouldn't have said that much, because under the recent Alien and Sedition Act, Baldwin was arrested for making an un-American statement. He was tried before the circuit court, which, incidentally, was presided over by George Washington's nephew, Bushrod Washington, and found guilty, fined and sent to jail. It wasn't until 1964 that the Alien and Sedition Act was declared unconstitutional and struck from the books.

One of the most bizarre stories to hit the press during the Thomas Jefferson era involved, of all things, an erroneous report of Jefferson's sudden death. The story broke in July of 1800, twenty-six years prior to Jefferson's actual death, and spread like wildfire from Philadelphia to Boston. It took a week for the truth to become known, but the facts finally came out when it was revealed that it had been one of Jefferson's slaves, who shared the exact same name, who had died, not the founding father of our nation. Ironically, Thomas Jefferson, the founding father, really died on the twenty-sixth anniversary of that erroneous story of his demise.

Winchester Hospital unveils a new logo

The introduction of a new identity is as significant an event for a hospital as for a Fortune 500 company.

"Celebration" set the tone throughout the day as Eugene E. Loubier, president of Winchester Hospital, introduced

Hospital S-4

School notes

by phyllis nissen

—A "blood type" was held recently at Stoneham High, courtesy of business department teachers Cathy Broderick, Dorothy Corkum and Joan Jacobs; and Stoneham High students who obtained pledges for the number of words they could type in a three-minute typing test administered there.

Proceeds of all "types" from Stoneham and participating schools throughout New England go to support the research fund of the Leukemia Society of America.

—"The World and its People" is a multi-disciplinary approach to social studies being used in Tewksbury elementary schools.

Its philosophy reflects the belief that children need to know, to appreciate and to do through a balanced presentation of content and skills. Its organization reflects a "widening horizons" approach; that is, the program begins with a study of self and family and expands to neighborhood, community, state, region, nation, and world.

Map reading, reading and language arts as well as citizenship, life and thinking skills are part of the program.

North St. School students have been taking the concepts within their texts and applying them to practical activities such as field trips to historical locations, construction of miniature communities, application of map skills, role playing in other cultures, celebrating historical activities, using the library as a resource center, and sharing experiences within the classroom that relate to larger social issues.

—Seventh grader Michael Manning of Lynnfield has won first prize in the Crayola National Coloring Contest. Selected from among thousands of entries for its creativity, his interpretation of the contest theme "My Vision of the Future" was a drawing of Planet Earth "with peace on it, no wars."

Planet Earth, a la Manning, has flags sticking out of various parts of the world. One flag calls for a halt to arms production, another is a memorial to Samantha Smith.

In recognition of his achievement, Manning received a five-foot plastic Crayola crayon.

—Burlington High runs its own "Child Development Nursery Program" — for children who are four years old by January 1st — through Rosemary Bransfield and the Home Economics Department there. The program runs three days a week for the first half of the year and four days a week for the second half.

The fee is $4.25 per week, and "children are chosen by the lottery system." Sometimes, we wish we'd had that option.

Antiques Show in Wakefield

The First Parish Congregational Church of Wakefield is pleased to announce its 17th Annual Antiques Show.This year's show is scheduled for Friday, March 25, 5 to 9 p.m., and Saturday, March 26, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Those who have attended this antiques show in the past will find that many of their favorite dealers have returned as well as some new and interesting displays, adding both variety and quality to the merchandise offered.

The usual diversification of merchandise will be found with choice articles in jewelry, country furniture, old books, Oriental rugs, pewter, crystal, miniatures, coin and sterling silver.

Members of the church will be in charge of the snack bar which will provide light refreshments and tasty home-baked goods.

The church is located at the southern end of Lake Quannapowitt, near the center of town. Ample parking is available in the church parking lot, and the admission charge is nominal.

Poem

IN THE ATTIC

An attic is filled with memories
In every corner and nook
Of every make and description
No matter where you look.

You see a trunk that lies so forlornly
With cobwebs all over its lid
That couldn't be bought at auction
For the very highest bid.

It may be shabby and dirty
And worn at the edges, too,
But its contents are priceless treasures
Though only to me and you.

Open it and look in for yourself
Tell me, what do you see?
A broken doll, a teddybear
A dried twig from a Christmas tree.

A little faded sweater,
How dear it is to you,
And look there lying beside it
Is a little baby's shoe.

And all the little tin soldiers
That stand like sentinels true
Aren't broken or even out of place
But appear to be almost new.

You remember when they were placed there,
Although you were only seven,
T'was when a little baby brother
Had been taken away to Heaven.

And there tied up so carefully
In a tiny faded box
Is a beautiful golden ringlet
Clipped from his curly locks.

You pause for a moment thinking
Of that little one still so dear
And offer a prayer in silence
As you brush away a tear.

And then you spy a picture
Of a funny looking kiddie
With freckles and pigtails hanging down
Wearing a skirt and middie.

You laugh until you're nearly sick
And feel like a silly fool
As you recall that day so well
The picture was taken in school.

There's a package of letters all tied up
With a worn-out ribbon of blue
All scented with violet essence
I bet they hold secrets, too.

And so as you go thru that dear old trunk
That has lain in the attic for years
You can look back over the bygone days
With mingled laughter - and tears.

Helping hearing impaired

During 1871 and 1872, Alexander Graham Bell was a teacher of the deaf. In fact he hoped to be best remembered for helping the deaf to communicate. That tradition of helping the hearing impaired continues today.

Winchester Hospital's Emergency Room is equipped with a TDD (Telecommunication Device for the Deaf). A telephone receiver is placed in the TDD which allows the hearing impaired to transmit and receive information typed on their TDD screen.

"Community members who have access to a TDD and are in need of medical advice may call the Winchester Hospital's TDD line by dialing 729-9015," said Joanne Dyson, Emergency Room head nurse.

Burt Reynolds talks about himself

LOS ANGELES — It's a whopper of a fish story, even if it is true.

Burt Reynolds has no one to thank but a mechanical shark for landing him the role of Sully, a cable television news director still in love with his ex-wife, (Kathleen Turner) in Switching Channels. Michael Caine was scheduled to play the role, but was stuck filming Jaws 4, so producer Marty Ransahoff walked out his front door, across the street and asked Reynolds if he'd like to fill in. Reynolds liked.

The role, a remake of His Girl Friday is a return to comedy for an actor who has been trapped playing brutal detectives for the past few years. Reynolds, who looks trim and dapper and healthier than rumors would have allowed, was hitting the media trail recently to promote the flick. And he seemed very happy to be working on a comedy again.

"Sure I missed it. I would have much preferred in the last five years to have been doing comedy. It's not only the hardest thing to do well, it's the hardest thing to find. And I've been losing those parts to Richard Dreyfuss," he laughed.

"There's a whole new audience out there who doesn't know my work. You know, it's a shock when you've had hits in the early 70s, and those were my best years in terms of box office, and you do a few films that aren't successful — I made a joke about Dreyfuss, but he was semi-retired when he did (Down and Out In) Beverly Hills."

"I think that's true for me. I think I had a couple of films — they made money, if you believe what you read they were the biggest disasters since Hiroshima — but Heat made money, Malone made money, because of the tape sales. My audience is still there, they didn't just go away, they're just waiting for me to make a good picture. But there's another audience out there that I don't know yet, and they don't know me, and I need a film for them to find me. Hopefully this picture will be the picture."

While the actor said he doesn't regret his choices in the past, he admitted not always picking the best projects to work on. But now he wants work that will stretch him artistically and be satisfying, as he said he doesn't need to work for the money anymore.

"I was never particularly good at that (picking roles) because I always used to go and do pictures with people I liked. I had a hell of a time during those years that I did a lot of films, but some of them weren't very good. Invariably, what I used to fall back on was, 'Do I know the people, am I going to have a good time, are they nice people? Where's the location? Jamaica.

Reynolds to S-8.

From S-1

She hears 'I do' 2,000 times

'obey' from the marriage service? "

"Can you divorce people? "

"Can you baptize? "

She does not include "obey" in the ceremony, but along with her inability to perform baptism or divorce, Vullo added, she also cannot pronounce a couple "man and wife."

"I can't pronounce anyone a man," she said with a good-natured twinkle, "a husband, yes — but not a man," so she concludes the ceremony by declaring the couple "husband and wife."

Perhaps the most unusual place where Vullo has married people was the cockpit of a DC-10 at Logan Airport, during the Great Blizzard of '78, where she pronounced a pilot and his fiancee husband and wife.

"It was so interesting," she said "because the cockpit was so small. We had to exchange the rings several times since the guests were all in the passenger section and they wanted to see that part of the ceremony."

Vullo said the choice of settings for weddings may range from the very elegant to the very casual. She has joined couples at the Glen Magna estate in Danvers, the Crane estate in Ipswich, the Martha Mary Chapel in Sudbury, the rotunda of Boston's Quincy Market, and at the bottom of the 39 Steps in Nahant, where the stairs lead down to the sea.

One of the most popular spots for area residents is the small white gazebo on North Reading Common. They may also use the living room of the Vullos' Sunset Avenue home.

Betty Vullo has married couples at country clubs where there have been a priest and a rabbi in attendance — and she has performed weddings while the voice of interpreters translated the ceremony into Spanish and Chinese.

Her most famous groom is probably former Boston Bruin Phil Esposito.

Vullo, who has married about 2,000 couples, sees her justice of the peace role as both a serious and an essential one.

"I function as a catalyst," she said. "A lot of young people come for a civil ceremony to avoid the cost of a big wedding. Older couples who have been married before may not want to go through a second, elaborate church wedding — and of course there are divorced people who may want to marry again, but cannot do so within their own church.

"And weddings are such happy events that it's a real pleasure for me to officiate. So it's a question of joy. People treat you like family: in later years they want you to meet their children, they send Christmas cards and keep in touch with visits."

Betty and her husband John Vullo were themselves married in a Presbyterian church in Nebraska on a cold and snowy Christmas Day.

But for the couples she has joined, whereas June used to be the most popular month for brides, she said, May and October have become the strong favorites — for both the beautiful weather and the Monday holidays which provide extra time for honeymooning.

"Along with the joy," Vullo concluded, "I like to stress the seriousness of the occasion of a civil wedding. It always impresses me how such a simple ceremony can be so significant and so beautiful.

"Of course, it's always the groom who tends to be the most nervous — and nine times out of 10 the bride and groom don't know which are their right hands. It's the same with their ring hands."

But with a little nod from Betty Vullo, the ceremony always comes out right in the end.

And so to the penguins.

This past weekend, Vullo was scheduled to marry a couple above the penguin pool at the New England Aquarium in Boston. The bride-to-be, Vullo said, had promised to supply enough fish to quiet the flightless birds if they became too noisy during the ceremony.

And, fully fed, they might later serve as waiters at the reception.

At least they'd be dressed for it.

and explained the reason for the new logo design to members of the Board of Directors, medical staff, employees and volunteers.

"This is our new face," he said. "It is a symbol of our vision and our direction."

A bold "W" in warm plum color and modern typestyle with raised right arm conveys an upbeat, forward-looking organization. The gray-beige half circles behind the "W" signify the delivery of services to the communities within the hospital's service area; and the heavy teal green line supporting the design is a statement of the solid foundation on which Winchester Hospital, the holding company (Winchester Healthcare Management, Inc.) and the two other subsidiaries (Winchester Healthcare Enterprises, Inc. and Winchester Healthcare Investments, Inc.) stand.

The former logo, also with prominent "W," stood only for Winchester Hospital and was its mark for 20 years. With the corporate reorganization and all the programs and services now offered or being planned, it was necessary to have a new identification symbol that would convey this change.

"The 'W' is very important to us. It stands for a fine tradition of excellence in care. That is our strength," the hospital president said.

"But community hospitals as we have known them are not going to survive my lifetime. We have to change. Winchester Hospital is going to be one of the survivors. We are facing the health care environment as no other hospital in this area is. We are strategically moving ahead to make Winchester Hospital part of a regional system of family health care. We're going to provide the breadth of services for our patients via the hospital, but with the added strength of our holding company and our subsidiaries.

In support of this, the new mark incorporates a tagline — "Regional family health care system."

"This is an exciting time for us. A lot of changes are going on within our organization. A new logo helps to strengthen that fact. We are moving ahead. We are a regional family health care system."

ROVING

from S-1

According to Edna Colman, author of "Seventy-five Years of White House Gossip," Thomas Jefferson actually walked to his own inauguration wearing a plain gray suit. The story went down in history, creating an image of Jefferson as being this simple, down-to-earth leader who couldn't care less about frills and fancy. Well, the truth is, Jefferson walked to his own inauguration wearing a plain gray suit because the weather was inclement on that day and the bad weather delayed the arrival of his new $6,000 carriage and tailored velvet suit.

Toll roads began cropping up on the American landscape back in the nineteenth century. In 1809, the New York Turnpike authority instituted tolls for the sixty-eight-mile road between Schenectady and Utica. Among the tolls: 5 cents for a horse and rider; 12½ cents for a sulkie or a two-horse stagecoach; 18½ cents for a four-horse stagecoach; 9 cents for a one-horse wagon; 12½ cents for a two-horse wagon; and a whopping $1 for a six-horse wagon. By the way, a one-horse sleigh was assessed a 6 cent toll, while a six- horse sleigh was charged 14 cents. It's no wonder Santa Claus decided to fly instead of taking the New York Turnpike.

According to Wilson Clark, author of "Energy for Survival," farmers painted their barns red because it was discovered that red paint absorbs the sun well, and it was helpful in keeping barns warm for livestock during winter months. By the way, early farmers made their red paint by mixing skim milk with rust shavings off of old fences and nails.

In "Poltroons and Patriots," by Glenn Tucker, it is revealed that the British, after storming Washington, D.C., during the War of 1812, resorted to democratic principles to decide whether or not the capital should be burned. Admiral Cockburn, the leader of the British troops, stood up on the Speaker's platform in the House of Representatives and asked his assembled officers and men if they wanted to burn the city. The response was a resounding "aye! " and the capital was set afire.

Reinhold Niebuhr: "Man's capacity for justice makes democracy possible, but man's inclination to injustice makes democracy necessary."

Make it a good week.

MUSCLE SCULPTURING

The North Suburban YMCA is offering a new and effective workout class entitled "Muscle Sculpturing." Muscle Sculpturing involves a series of exercises which stimulate and shape the body's deepest, largest muscles. Such exercises will melt fat off buttocks and hips, flatten your stomach, stretch your neck, firm your chin and slim your thighs and legs.

Small, delicate movements are taught instead of the high impact movements of the traditional exercise class. The exercises used are very carefully designed to reduce the risk of injuring your back, neck or any other muscle that's being put to work. This class will help your posture and give you an appreciation for your newly toned body.

Muscle Sculpturing is now being offered to all females from age 18 on, and will meet every Tuesday and Thursday from 11 a.m. to noon for 12 weeks. The first session will begin on March 28, which allows you two weeks to sign up. Classes will be held in the Aerobics Studio and there will be a fee of $30 for YWCA members and $45 for non-members. Don't be late in signing up, first come first serve will be in effect!

Middlesex School Summer Arts is accepting applications for its 1988 program (June 27-July 29). This unique Multi-Arts Camp gives young people ages 8-15 an opportunity to select their own schedule from over 60 classes in theatre, visual arts, dance, music, drama and technical theatre, as well as swimming, tennis, gymnastics and recreational games. All classes are taught by a professional staff experienced in working with young people in the arts.

In addition, the camp offers a weekly newspaper which gives students opportunities in creative writing, journalistic reporting, interviewing and cartooning. "Noontime Specials" each day give opportunities for performances by campers, staff and guest artists. All of the "Noontime Specials" are open and free to the public.

An Act/Tunes full length musical production will be performed at the end of July. A full day of performances, demonstrations and art exhibits will culminate the program on July 29th.

The beautiful Middlesex School campus combined with the expertise and enthusiasm of the professional staff, provides a supportive atmosphere in which creative talents can be nourished for a lifetime of enjoyment and appreciation or the artistic process.

The program runs from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Mondays through Thursdays and 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. on Fridays at the Middlesex School in Concord. Tuition is $675 for the five-week session. Marilyn Abbott and Kathryn DeFord of Act/Tunes Youth Theatre are the program directors.

National Historic Sites courses offered

WALTHAM — "Recovering Yankee History," a course focusing on five national historical parks and sites in Eastern Massachusetts, will be presented in March and April by the New England Heritage Center of Bentley College and the North Atlantic Region of the National Park Service.

The program, to be held on five Saturday mornings beginning March 19, is aimed toward high school and college educators and anyone interested in historic preservation. Sessions will include discussions and tours led by historical architects, archaeologists, historians and preservation specialists.

Sites and parks to be explored are the Saugus Iron Works National Historic Site (March 19), Minute Man National Historical Park in Lexington (March 26), Lowell National Historical Park (April 9), the Frederick Law Olmsted National Historic Site in Brookline (April 16), and the Adams National Historic Site in Quincy (April 30).

Participants will learn of the history associated with each site, methods and materials employed to discover this history, and the choices we face in deciding what is to be preserved and how.

An introductory reception hosted by New England Heritage Center Director Dr. Joyce L. Malcolm and National Park Service regional Historian Dwight Pitcaithley will be held at Bentley College in Waltham from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. on Monday, March 14.

The $95 registration fee for the course includes all educational materials. The course is eligible for 1.4 CEU credits and two in-service teaching credits. For more information call Dr. Malcolm at 891-3484.

Creative Kids Arts Fair

Are you a parent who's always looking for new, exciting ways to spend Saturdays with your kids? Well, circle March 26 in red on your calendar.

On that Saturday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Creative Arts for Kids in Reading hosts its annual Arts Fair. Held in the Congregational Church on 25 Woburn St., (entrance on Sanborn St.) CAK's Arts Fair offers a wide variety of activity tables, a puppet show and musical entertainment for the low admission fee of $3.

Some of the 25 art table activities include paper folding, Chinese clay, bark painting, leather tooling, tile magnet making, face painting, mask making, and Kokeshi (clothespin) dollmaking to name but a few. Kids can learn and play throughout the five hour fair.

They will, however, want to take a break at 11 a.m. when puppeteer Claire DiMeo performs The Bird of Seven Colors — a Puerto Rican version of Cinderella. Di Meo, a highly accomplished puppeteer, has performed at Boston's Puppet Showplace and has given workshops at regional and national puppet festivals. As founder and director of Discovery Workshops in Melrose, DiMeo worked with children's theater for many years; presently, she still runs puppet workshops in many public schools throughout the area.

In addition to Ms. DiMeo's puppet show, this year's Arts Fair offers another new feature — a music marathon. In an effort to raise funds for Creative Arts' music program, students have solicited sponsors who agreed to contribute money for each hour of music played. For example, if a sponsor decides to donate $2 for each of the five hours Arts Fair runs, a contribution of $10 goes to Creative Arts for Kids. Contributing sponsors will receive a free admission button to Arts Fair.

In addition to the arts tables, puppet show and music marathon covered under the $3 admission fee, attendees will find additional activities for a small fee. Tables for pastel portrait sketches as well as caricatures will be available. Also, there will be a button machine where, if you bring a snapshot, you can have a button made of your favorite photo.

As all this activity whets your appetite, you can sample international foods from France, China, Germany, Italy and the U.S. throughout the day. A bake table will also be on hand for the proverbial sweet tooth.

Let's face it, spring begins in March only theoretically in New England. So, for a while more anyway, Saturday picnics and softball games may be out of the question. Come to the Arts Fair where you and your kids can learn, play and be entertained most of the day. It promises to be an outstanding event.

What a winter for potholes!

The perennial problem of potholes will probably be worse this year, thanks to an especially cold winter and a few early warm spells, the State Department of Public Works says.

According to the March/April issue of AAA World, the member publication for AAA Massachusetts with over 450,000 readers in the eastern part of the state, pothole damage ranges from minor problems such as dented or lost hubcaps to more serious ones such as ruined tires and rims.

"There is a general misconception that damage caused by potholes is covered under comprehensive insurance, when in fact such claims are considered roadbed collisions by insurance companies," says Sherrie Ryan, manager of AAA Insurance Agency, Inc. "Pothole damage falls under collision coverage, which has a standard deductible of $300. Most pothole damage is minor and doesn't exceed the deductible."

If the incident occurred on a state highway, the article says you may submit an appeal in writing to Chief Engineer Robert Johnson at Massachusetts Department of Public Works, 10 Park Plaza, Boston, Ma. 02116-3973.

Life in slow lane

Coming Attractions

By William Pacino

LIFE IN SLOW LANE

The American fitness boom is on the move again. After a decade of pursuing intense, aerobic exercise, Americans in record numbers are switching to low-impact, more moderate forms of exercise.

Walking and Hiking Top the List — The physical hazards of more strenuous exercise, specifically running, have lured millions into walking and hiking. This has been a boon to some segments of the leisure time industry. "I have to admit the trend has been great for our business," reports Michael Fishbach, founder of Vermont Hiking Holidays in Bristol, Vermont. "We've been doubling our business every year and there's no end in sight." Fishbach was a top ranked professional tennis player prior to launching his guided inn-to-inn hiking and walking trips in 1983. "Enjoying the natural beauty of Vermont by day with the comforts of a cozy country inn at night is a combination hard to beat," says Fishbach.

With an estimated 45 million Americans now participating in some form of hiking and walking, the commercial growth for related products and services could be dramatic. Vermont Hiking Holidays luckily seems to be at the right place at the right time.

For more information on Hiking and Walking vacations, contact Vermont Hiking Holidays, Box 750-PR, Bristol, Vt. 05443, or call (802) 453-4816.

TOY TRAIN CHILDREN'S DAYS

On Saturday and Sunday, March 19 and 20, the A&D Toy-Train Village will hold it's 3rd annual "Children's Days." On these days, all children under 12 will be admitted free when arriving with their family (not applicable for groups). Children who are able to safely operate a certain regular electric toy train themselves at least twice around the layout without derailment or accident, will receive an honorary engineer's card and a free cardboard engineer's hat.

In addition to the museum's 35 permanent exhibits, and 50 operating trains (many operated by push-buttons), the A&D's annex will be open. The annex is a special room with unique themed displays and only open on special event days. For Children's Day it will include the "Evolution of Toy Trains."

The A&D Toy-Train Village is open daily 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. (year-round), and located at 49 Plymouth Street (off routes 18,28), in Middleboro, Mass. Plymouth Street is located 2 miles north of the Middleboro rotary (jcts. 18, 28, 44) and exit 6 (495/25). Admission to the museum is Adults $3.50, Seniors $3, and Juniors 5-12 normally $2. Admission is not required to enter the museum's gift shop. For more information, call Asst. Stationmaster Thomas Drake, at (617) 947-5303.

The North East Toy Soldier Society is a hobby club with membership from the New England area. Its members include collectors of toy soldiers of old or new manufacture, various toy miniatures and related militaria items. The show will feature exhibits and a vendors' section for sale of toy miniatures and related militaria items. Door prizes will be presented.

NEW AT THE NEWPORT MANSIONS

A new Classic Cars Exhibit at The Elms Garage and new Wedgewood Collection at The Elms and Chateau-sur-Mer will be added to the already opulent displays at the mansions open to the public by The Preservation Society of Newport County. In addition, several rooms and a huge Italian painting in the dining room of The Elms, the leather wall covering in the dining room of Chateau -sur-Mer, and two bedrooms and the library at Green Animals are restored.

The Classic Cars Exhibit will open daily on June 1. It will feature a 1938 Howard Darrin Packard, a gift from Carole Lombard to Clark Gable who drove it during the filming of "Gone With The Wind"; a 1928 yellow Rolls Royce used by Robert Redford in the movie "The Great Gatsby" which was shot at Rosecliff; a 1923 American Silver Ghost Rolls Royce given to President Woodrow Wilson on his 67th birthday which was also used last year in "Mr. North" filmed in Newport at several of the Preservation Society's houses; and a 1933 Rolls Royce Phantom II Town Brougham will be an additional $1 with The Elms ticket, or $2 to the exhibit alone.

The Breakers, The Elms, Marble House and Rosecliff will open daily from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on April 1. Chateau-sur-Mer, Kingscote and Hunter House will open weekends in April. All of them will open daily from May 1 to October 31. Green Animals topiary gardens in Portsmouth will open daily from May 1 to September 30 and weekends and holidays in October. Marble House, The Elms and Chateau-sur-Mer are now open weekends. Single tickets at each house are $4.50 for adults; $2 for children 6 through 11. Special combination tickets at substantial savings can be purchased at any one of these houses. There is ample free parking at all properties.

A free color brochure on all the mansions of the Preservation Society is available from the Society, 118 Mill Street, Newport, R.I. 02840; telephone (401) 847-1000.

From Dedham to Vermont, from Newport, R.I. to Middleboro, COMING ATTRACTIONS travels for a field to find an event for all to enjoy. But we can't be everywhere and could use your help in publicizing events for all. If you know of something along any line, write, care of this local newspaper and tell us all about it. We're getting itchy for spring happenings.

From S-4

Burt Reynolds

I'll take that picture.' And that's not a real good reason to do a film."

Next up for the actor is "Smoke," some of which was shot in Boston. Directed by Michael Crichton and also starring Theresa Russell, Reynolds likened it to a Bogey/Bacall type romance/thriller, but yes, he does carry a gun in it. Having directed films in the past, Reynolds said he would eventually like to see his work as a director at his dinner theatre in Florida cross over into film, so that one day he makes his living as a director/producer.

The past few years were turbulent for Reynolds, as the rumors of his having contracted AIDS and punching directors preceded him everywhere. Divorced from actress Judy Carne since 1966, Reynolds' romantic life has often been the stuff of tabloid speculation. Well, he didn't marry Dinah Shore or Sally Field, but the actor, now 52, says that this is the year he plans to marry Loni Anderson.

Settling down is just one sign that we are seeing a more mellow Reynolds these days. He spent some time out of the limelight, running his theatre and letting his hide toughen against intrusive rumors. And he says he's here for the long haul.

"I think part of the reason that people will be sort of fair to me now is that I've survived such a long time. I've been doing this for 33 years now. The mere fact that I'm still around and people have been somewhat thinking of me as a leading man, well, you get something for that.

"Maybe no one called me a Communist, but being said that you have AIDS in this day and age is just as bad and just as ugly and just as horrific. That you walk through that with some dignity, and don't hit too many directors, is good. I think you've got to get some pats on the back. I'm not sure I will. No one is going to come up and apologize for lying about you, because they don't want to be grabbed. But, there are an awful lot of people out there who have to say, 'Whew, he's still around.' "

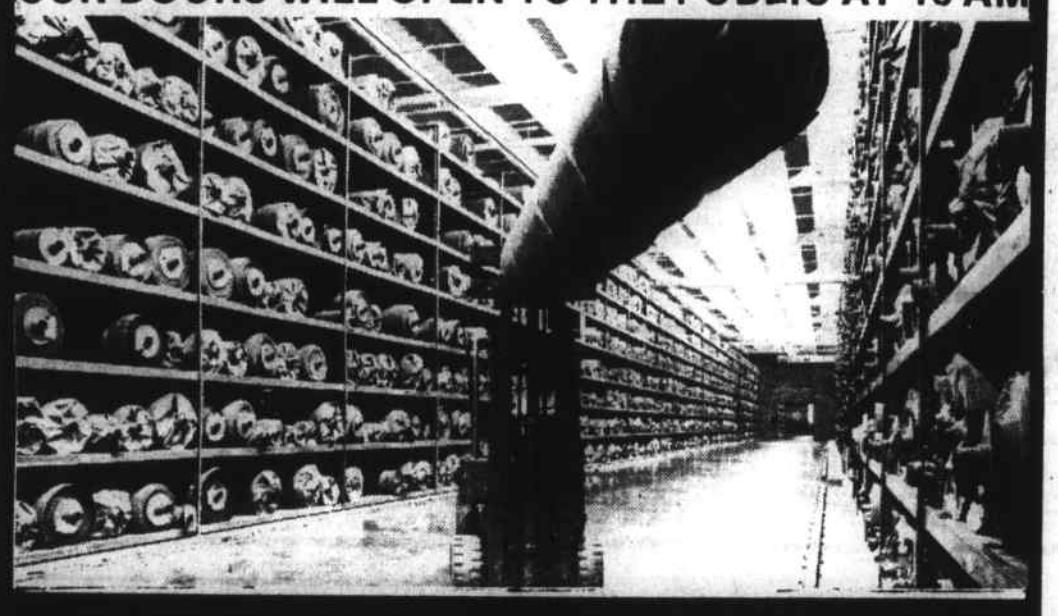

Don't block electric baseboard

Although electric baseboards usually contain safety cutoff switches, it is best not to block their inlets or outlets in any way. Nearby drapes should be kept 4" to 6" away from the top; if not, either the drapes may be damaged, or the baseboard heater will get overheated and keep cutting off.

Warm-water baseboard does not present those problems as their temperatures are significantly lower, says the Better Heating-Cooling Council. Drapes can extend down to and cover the baseboard, as long as there is space at the bottom for room air to enter the unit.

With drapes closed over the baseboard, the heated air forms a vertical blanket along the cold windows, and minimizes cold drafts.

CAUTION: Before deciding on a diamond it is imperative that you inspect the stone very carefully under 10X magnification in order to see with your own eyes the nature and extent of internal imperfections. A heavily imperfect diamond not only lacks brilliance & beauty, it is not a wise investment. Also, you'll want to avoid diamonds that are dark in color. Beware of those who advertise inferior diamonds at low prices as bait to lure you in. Come to Diamond Imports and you will be educated to make the intelligent choice. Woodchips

By ANTHONY MANCONI

Yesterday is history - tomorrow a mystery - that leaves today to live, love and laugh. We can't deposit todays and be sure that we can redeem and enjoy them tomorrow. We may end up with a lot of empty yesterdays. So don't lose a minute's sleep over a Dear John or Dear Jane letter. Pick up the pieces of a broken heart and live today and every day to its fullest.

When my cousin's husband died, she had chisled on his tombstone, "My light has gone out." She then proceeded to withdraw from the world becoming a veritable recluse. She met a man a year later at a family party (that she couldn't refuse to attend) who swept her off her feet. When he proposed marriage to her she asked her clergyman, "What do I do now? " "Go right ahead and marry him and where you have my light has gone out, have engraved under it, I have just struck another match."

I said to my nephew, Dennis Tully, "You don't know which side your bread is buttered on." He looked at me, smiled and replied, "What the heck difference does it make, I'm going to eat both sides anyway aren't I? " He is the same young whippersnapper who gave me a hard time at the Christmas party last year. I had two coins, a half dollar and a quarter in my hand so I said, "Dennis, pick one of these coins and keep it." He (to my surprise) picked the quarter. This was repeated several times and every time Dennis would choose the quarter. Dave O'Donnell called him aside and said, "Dennis, don't you know that the larger coin is worth twice that of the one you picked? " "Of course I know that, but so far I have $11.75 of that stupid Woodchipper's money."

About once every two weeks my Aunt Maureen can expect a visit from a jolly fellow with a bag over his shoulder. No folks, it isn't Santa Claus - it's her son, Charles, a senior at Harvard College bringing home his laundry for his mother to wash, dry and fold. Well folks, if you can't go to the Stone Zoo you can always go to the Woburn Elks. Last year they had the only "Chilly Willie" in captivity on display. Valentine's Day over 100 puppies were sold, now they have a parrot that must have belonged to a sea captain. It talks a blue streak and some of the words can't be printed. "Why is there a string attached to each leg? " I asked the John L. Sullivan of Woburn, Bill McGarr. "Pull one of the strings and see for yourself." I pulled the left one and the parrot said, "Hi, you look like an intelligent, well-bred person who doesn't belong here." I pulled the right string and the parrot said, "I can tell that you are kind, courteous and friendly." "Hey Bill," I said, "What will happen if I pull both strings at the same time? " The parrot let out a tremendous screech and then said, "Why you blooming idiot, what do you want me to do, fall off my perch and break my legs? You must be the nut who writes that crazy Woodchips column."

In prehistoric times, cavemen had a custom of beating the ground with clubs and uttering spine-chilling cries. Scientists call this a primitive form of self-expression. Many men today go through the very same ritual - we call it "golf." Robert Burns has been working very hard lately. He was coming down the stairs at home one morning still half asleep when he accidentally knocked over a large vase sending it crashing to the floor. Bob's lovely wife, Martha, was very calm before the storm as she said, "Robert, dear, that vase was over 200 years old." "Oh, thank goodness," Bob exclaimed, "I'm glad it wasn't new! "

At the New Year's party Kathy said to me, "Remind me to put a steak on your black eye when we get home tonight." I was having a great time dancing with all the pretty gals. Then I said to Kathy, "What do you mean remind you to put a steak on my black eye, I don't have any black eye." "Well, fatso," she said, "we're not home yet! "

Woodchips Personality Winners: Mary (Greely) Amato, Edward Flaherty, Carmine Mastrogiovanni, Warren Church, Frank Tuttle, Capt. Larz Neilson, Butch Vazza, Richard and Marie DeChristoforo, Arthur and Marie Marino, Philip McLaughlin, Cecile Vigilante, Marilyn Bianchi, Saul Ziner, Cindy Adams of Stoneham, Karen Conroy, Mary Pat Couig, Edmond Baratta, Susan Rubbico of Sheer Perfection in Winchester, Willie Cobb, Paul and Elena Mitchell of Tewksbury, Joe Foley Jr., Ed Sargent of Wilmington, Fr. Martin Ryan S.J., Fr. Robert Doherty, Jerry and Kathleen Ellis of Burlington and the wonderful Grace Boutwell of Woburn.

A woman called the police saying she could see some boys trying to drill a hole through a wooden fence that's around a nudist colony. Officer Richie Sweeney, the dispatcher, said, "Thank you for calling, madam, I'll send officer Kevin Fisher to look into it." Pat Regan of Winchester has a son, Michael Thomas Regan, who is only 3 years old. He looks as strong and durable as a Sherman tank. So it follows that he is a potential candidate to be a future Green Bay Packers football team linebacker.

Folks, how long a minute is depends on which side of the bathroom door you're on. Woodchips congratulates Ann Danley, manager of Mountain View Terrace in Stoneham. Ann went out in a raging blizzard on February 12 to rescue a dog that was frozen, confused and lost. She gave shelter to the dog until the Stoneham dog officer returned it to its owner. You are a kind lady, Ann Danley, and I salute you.

An Orange Line train stopped at Fellsway Station and many people got off and rushed to a waiting Woburn bus. The people were soon packed like sardines, but a man still kept pushing and shoving to get on. "Hey," said one of the passengers "are you nuts? Can't you see there isn't any room for you? " "There better be," replied the now subdued gentleman, "or else this bus isn't moving - I'm the bus driver! " My Aunt Nora from Wilmington pestered the cruise ship captain for many days with many endless nervous questions like, "Sir, do ships this size sink often? " "No, the captain replied, "only once." When the ship arrived at its destination the captain said, "You can relax now and stop worrying madam, we have dropped anchor." "I'm not a bit surprised," my Aunt Nora exclaimed, "its been hanging over the side for days."

Folks, I'm not a matchmaker, but Bradford Smith, a UPS driver in Winchester/Woburn area, is bugging me to put his name in this column with the hopes that he may meet a beautiful young lady. I've known Brad for almost two years and he is indeed a splendid young man. He looks like John Barrymore Jr., in fact I told him that he should go to Hollywood, the walk would do him a world of good. Other new readers are Betsy Walker, Mary Poole, Angie Quinno, Betsy Marci, all of Woburn, Paul and Barbara Leedham, Paul and Pam LaBossiere of Wilmington, Mark Hamilton of UPS and Ed and Grace Andrusaitis of Stoneham.

Dennis Tully, my nephew, won first prize in his poetry class with this poem, "Roses are red, violets are blue. If I looked like the Woodchipper, I'd belong in a zoo." I asked Dave O'Donnell, my cousin, why he chose teaching as a profession - was it dedication, zeal or love of children? Dave smiled and said "All of those and especially, June, July and August, summer vacation."

"Happy St. Patrick's Day to all. Erin Go Bragh."

Booklet available

"Fuel Cost Facts"

When words are not defined clearly they can cause confusion, and this is what has been happening with the word "efficiency." From the homeowner's viewpoint this word should be defined in dollars: How much usable heat do I get for each dollar I spend for energy?

A vest-pocket folder published by the Better Heating-Cooling Council shows this at a glance, for electricity, gas and fuel oil, taking into account the typical operating efficiencies of various types of heating systems.

Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for "Fuel Cost Facts" to Better Heating-Cooling Council, P.O. Box 218, Berkeley Heights, N.J. 07922.

MOVIE REVIEWS Rochelle Flynn

Vice Versa

Short Takes

Vice Versa Starring Judge Reinhold, Fred Savage, Swoozie Kurtz. Directed by Brian Gilbert. Written and produced by Dick Clement and Ian La Frenais. Rated PG (profanity).

It's a popular theme this season. Dudley Moore already did it and Tom Hanks is going to soon. This time it's Judge Reinhold. Well, Judge Reinhold and Fred Savage. After all, you can't pull the old switcheroo routine without another person.

Transmigrating souls, switching personalities or changing places. Whatever you call it, there have been plenty of movies involving this theme over the years. The worst was, no, not last year's limp Moore version, but a perfectly awful 1940 British flick called Turnabout. Considering how many variations there have been on this plot, it's almost amazing that Vice Versa is as good as it is.

And make no mistake, this is a very entertaining picture, even if it isn't going to go down in the annals of film history as particularly memorable. What may stick in people's minds, however, is Reinhold's performance. While he had a starring role in the unsuccessful Head Office, this is the first time a movie really depended on him, and he proved he is capable of more than supporting parts.

The story gets jolted into action when Reinhold, a preoccupied executive at a fancy department store, discovers an ancient skull has been smuggled in with the merchandise he picked up on a buying trip to Bangkok. Turns out the skull isn't just old and ugly, but is magical as well, which is why Reinhold the workaholic ends up in the body of his 11-year-old son.

Savage, who reminds one of a pint-size Jay Leno, is remarkably in control as the adult. He comes across as commandeering and believable, not just precocious. Reinhold, on the other hand, goes from understated and somber to positively bubbly. Savage with his compact frame and quick motions is always in charge of the disasters created by their situations, while Reinhold as the child awkwardly lumbers through, going from adventurous to scared.

The dialogue is clever and the humor is made up of more than just the physical gags you'd expect. Actually, most of the film works on a level that can reach both adults and pre-teens. One of the best lines in the movie has an amazed Reinhold ask if their personality problem might not be global. He suggests that the world has been taken over by an "invasion of the body switchers."

Short Takes

The Serpent and the Rainbow is being touted as a Wes Craven horror yarn when in actuality it is about the Haitian voodoo religion and the "zombie" powder that causes people to go into a trancelike state very like death. While it's an okay, if somewhat disjointed telling of one man's search for the truth behind the myth, it certainly isn't the scarefest the ads would have you believe. Rated R. * *

The Dead is John Huston's swan song and it couldn't have been lovelier. A close adaptation of a short story by James Joyce, it is about the revels of a group of turn-of-the century Dubliners, one of whom reveals a smoldering passion for a long dead love. Leisurely paced and richly detailed, this is the crowning jewel in a memorable career. Rated PG. * * * *

Moonstruck is everything a comedy should be and then some. It's upbeat, intelligent and pure unadulterated escapism that's reminiscent of the old Ernst Lubitsch movies. The comedy is sophisticated and the entanglements complex as an Italian-American family plays out a game of love, jealousy and marriage. And yes, Cher can do comedy. Rated PG. * * * *

The Manchurian Candidate is a strange, dark, bleakly funny movie first released in 1962. Set in a presidential election year, it has a weird, commie-bashing storyline with politics that so embarrassed Frank Sinatra he bought up the rights to it years ago, just recently relinquishing his hold on it. A paranoid thriller about a brain-washed assassin who could be set off at any time is as innovative and brilliant as anything produced in the last 25 years. Rated PG-13. * * * *

Shoot to Kill may have a lot of problems, most notably in areas of plot, but it isn't a bad action/adventure flick. The only thing special about it is Sidney Poitier, who stars as a big city cop sent into the wilderness after a deranged killer. We've seen the story and the cliches hundreds of times, but it is great to see Poitier back on screen. Rated R. * * ½

School Daze director Spike Lee tried something different by putting together a black musical about college fraternities with a serious undercurrent concerning class distinctions within the black community. It does have some sparkle and wit, but the last 30 minutes become strained under the message it is sending. Rated R. * *

Good Morning, Vietnam is little more than a showcase for the comedic talents of Robin Williams, who shines as the disruptive disc jockey who shook up Southeast Asia with his controversial radio shows. However, there is almost no plot to encase Williams' brilliant performance, so about halfway through you are ready to pack it in. One wonders why this man continues to appear in mediocre movies when his gifts seem more suited for a concert film. Rated R. * *

A Night in the Life of Jimmy Reardon is an extremely forgettable teen angst picture with good intentions that are squandered on a leaden narrative and unflinchingly dumb plot devices.

Rated R. * ½
